SET TRAP IN HUNT FOR RAIDERS

Carranzistas Try to Drive the Bandits North as United States Troops Push South

By WALLACE E. SMITH,
International News Staff Correspondent.

El Paso, Tex., May 15.—Major Langhorne's cavalry, pressing forward from Boquillas in pursuit of the Mexican outlaws who raided the Big Bend district, is marching straight into Mexico today, one hundred miles from the border.

Ignoring the difficulty of getting provisions and the fact that his troops were fully a day's march ahead of their supporting column under Colonel Sibley, Major Langhorne seemed intent only on overtaking the bandits and rescuing Jesse Deemer and Monroe Payne, the Americans held prisoners by the bandits.

In Langhorne pushes south 1500 Carranzista troops are beginning to drive the Big Bend raiders north so they will be caught between the U. S. and Mexican columns.

PROBE FIRES AT FORT.

Accordingly it was Major Langhorne's cavalry that held the centre of interest today while General Bell continued his investigation of fires at Fort Bliss. This investigation is said to result in a military hearing for some officers. General Funston has ordered a thorough inquiry.

If the fire was of incendiary origin—which seems supported by the fact that it broke out in half a dozen places almost simultaneously—General Funston wants to know how the incendiary passed the guards on the reservation.

CITIZENS ARMING.

The guards should have been especially alert since the burning of the El Paso Country Club on the outskirts of the reservation about a fortnight ago.

Enlist for Boston's Big 'Preparedness' Parade on May 27

ONE hundred and fifty thousand men and women marched up Fifth avenue in New York on Saturday to register their mighty conviction that the United States should prepare, so that by preparing we may avoid war.

Boston men and women will likewise march on Saturday, May 27; and the AMERICAN urges with all possible force that every man and woman who can march in the Preparedness Parade that day arrange to do so.

The New York parade was a most splendid demonstration of the deep-founded determination of a whole people. The Boston parade will be second only to that demonstration.

Hundreds of Boston organizations will march in the parade. If you are a member of a suitable organization, work to send that organization into line. If not, "enlist" as an individual and do your single part.

By so doing you register your belief that the United States should prepare; you express your determination to see to it that the United States shall make ready to stand as a strong nation among nations, commanding her fair meed of respect, neither committing aggression nor submitting to it.

The parade headquarters are at No. 42 Broad street. Lieutenant-Colonel Beaumont B. Buck is in charge. If you have inquiries to make, address them to him there; and if you can do so, notify him of your desire to be one of the marchers.

GORE RESOLVE URGES WILSON TO END WAR

By International News Service.

Washington, May 15.—A resolution urging the President again to extend his offer to mediate the European war and to take measures to preserve neutrality, was introduced in the Senate today by Senator Gore of Oklahoma.

The resolution was reported to be the forerunner of a new peace movement by the Bryan Democrats in Congress. Without debate the resolution went over under the rules for future consideration.

A paragraph of the resolution read that "pending war among other nations, the Congress and the people of the United States are desirous of maintaining even-handed and undiscriminating neutrality."

FOUR MEN KILLED IN DU PONT EXPLOSION

Wilmington, Del., May 15.—Four men were killed today in an explosion in the plant of the du Pont Powder Company at Gibbstown, N. J.

MORE RECRUITS FOR PARADE ON PREPAREDNESS

Additional applications pouring into the headquarters of the Citizens' Preparedness Parade Committee, No. 45 Broad street, today indicated that the parade on May 27 will be one of the largest ever held in this city.

One of the surprises of the movement has been the remarkable interest of the women's organizations in the parade plans, as was evidenced by the receipt of information that the great fete at the Lara Anderson estate, scheduled for the day of the parade, has been postponed until June 2 in order that, so far as possible, there shall be no counter attraction to detract from the marching columns.

At the headquarters of the Special Aid Society for American Preparedness also little interest is evident. There a committee will take entire charge of the listing of members of the organization and other women who desire to participate in the march. The organization has some 5,000 members and fully that number, including individuals not members of the society, but marching with it, are expected to turn out.

Much interest is being shown in the special demonstration of preparedness being planned for former soldiers, sailors and volunteers of the United States service, a division of which will meet at the formation point on the day of the parade and there, without previous arrangement, form companies, battalions and regiments, completely officered, and join the line in perfect form. This plan will give, according to military men, one of the most impressive demonstrations of the result of preparedness and previous military training ever arranged for a public parade. It is to show that these men formerly in the service can be depended upon in time of emergency, and would be immediately available, that the division has been arranged.

Incidentally, to Daniel J. Ranson of East Boston belongs the honor of being the first to answer this mobilization request. Mr. Ranson, a former sailor, registered for the parade by mail, with the statement that he would "either march or go to the real thing."

While the parade limit tentatively has been placed at 25,000 by the managing committee, it was believed this morning that it will be necessary to raise that figure, perhaps double it, as the various organizations are heard from over the State.

SAYS DAY KISSED WIFE

Boston Investigator, Testifying at Carpenter Divorce Hearing, Tells of Scenes at Magnolia

Concord, N. H., May 15.—William I. Paine, a Boston investigator, today described on the witness stand how Mrs. Marguerite Paul Carpenter and J. Gould Day, who is named as one of the co-respondents, sat in a chair together on the veranda of the Gables cottage at Magnolia and embraced and kissed each other. He was testifying at the hearing of the divorce suit of Major Ralph G. Carpenter of Wolfboro and Boston.

This is the second week of the trial and the courtroom was filled, many of the spectators being women. Mrs. Carpenter sat within the bar enclosure, Major Carpenter sat with his attorneys.

Paine was the first witness. He testified as follows:

"On August 31, the day I was hired, I saw J. Gould Day and Mrs. Carpenter on the veranda of the Gables cottage. They were sitting in one chair. They sat there from 9:15 until 12:01 a. m. I saw them embrace each other.

On September 1 witness stated that they remained until 12:35 at Gables cottage. He testified further that on September 2 he saw Mrs. Carpenter and Day kissing each other when they parted at night.

"On September 4," he testified, "Ralph Carpenter, Jr., was apparently ill, and for that reason Day did not come to the cottage.

"On September 4, about 9:30 that evening, while watching the piazza, I saw Mrs. Carpenter sitting in Day's lap. I was able to see this incident by reason of the sudden flashing of a light which illuminated the piazza.

Questioned by Attorney Nathaniel B. Martin:

Q.—Referring to the night that Mr. Carpenter was with you when you saw them going to the cottage, tell us what Mr. Carpenter did?

A.—He became furious and wanted to go over. I had hard work restraining him. I advised him not to go.

Here the witness was taken in hand for cross-examination by General Samuel Streeter.

ACCUSED POISONER DEFIANT

University Student Pale and Haggard After Jail Life; New Letter Aids Theory of Suicide

By International News Service.

Waukegan, Ill., May 15.—Pale and haggard from his months of confinement, but withal defiant, Will Orpet, university student and Beau Brummel among his school girl friends, went on trial for his life today in Judge Charles Donnelly's court.

Orpet, the State charges, administered the poison which caused the death of Marian Frances Lambert, one of his schoolday sweethearts, as they stood in the snow in Helms Woods last February—she pleading with him, he obdurate.

That the girl committed suicide because Orpet was paying attention to another is the defence set up by counsel for the young student.

The girl thought she was about to become a mother. It was from this disgrace that she was pleading with him to save her through marriage.

Today's session was taken up with preliminary legal skirmishing and efforts to get a jury. In this work young Orpet's attorneys admitted they have but one object, and that is to get a jury composed as largely as possible of men who oppose capital punishment. It may take a week to get a jury.

ORPET FASCINATED BY POE.

The little court room was crowded today. The parents of the girl, their months of grief plainly visible in their faces, sat on one side of the court room. On the other sat young Orpet's father and mother, scarcely less grief-stricken, but hopeful. School friends of Marian and of young Orpet, many of them witnesses, and the country folks for miles around were in court.

Orpet, since his confinement, has spent his time reading huge volumes of law books relating to trials on circumstantial evidence. According to his jailers he has developed an almost abnormal taste for Poe and his weird fanaticisms on murder, suicide and after life.

A little stir was created just before the opening of the trial when it became noised about that Orpet's attorneys have dug up a letter said to

IRISH KNIGHT IN COURT AS TRAITOR

London, May 15.—At the preliminary trial of Sir Roger Casement, supposed head and instigator of the Sinn Fein revolt, and Daniel Julian Bailey here today, the plans back of the rebellion were revealed for the first time.

Bailey was arrested in Tralee, Ireland, and was charged with high treason, along with Sir Roger.

Sir Roger interrupted the proceedings early to defend Bailey. He arose in his place in the dock and cried:

"That man (pointing to Bailey) is innocent. I think the indictment is wrongfully drawn against him."

The prosecutor charged that Bailey was an English prisoner of war who joined the German army. The prosecutor also recited Sir Roger's alleged attempts to win other prisoners to fight for the Germans. Sir Roger scribbled on a bit of paper at that point:

"They did so at their own request."

It was brought out that a small steamship of the Wilson line was fitted out for Tralee with 20,000 rifles, several million rounds of ammunition, disguised as timber and ten machine guns to be used by the Irish rebels. This was the ship sunk by the British fleet.

The plan of Sir Roger was to march into Dublin at the head of the rebels and raid Dublin Castle and seize the seat of Irish government.

DESCRIBE SINKING OF SHIP.

A description of the sinking of the German filibuster, bearing arms for the Irish insurrectionists, was read into the records by the attorney-general.

During the entire proceedings Casement remained calm, taking voluminous notes. Occasionally an amused smile crossed his face. This was so when evidence was given that between fifty and sixty Irish prisoners in the Limberg camp had joined his brigade for the invasion of Ireland. These men were to be equipped and stationed near Berlin until a propitious moment to make for the invasion.

A number of British war prisoners who had been inmates of the Limberg camp, corroborated the statements that Casement tried in every way to get Irish prisoners to fight England.

It was established by the testimony that a third man named Monteith, also

Submarine K-2 Collides with a Steamship

Washington, May 15.—A wireless message to the Navy Department today reported that the submarine K-2 collided last night with the steamer Aragon, fourteen miles north of Cape Delaware, while on route from Hampton Roads to the New York navy yard.

The submarine's bow was seriously damaged. The damage to the Aragon and other details were not given. The K-2 was able to proceed on its way to the New York yard.

VOTE ON BRANDEIS IS AGAIN DELAYED

SCORE SUNDAY DRILL AT HARVARD

Sunday military drills and maneuvres at Harvard were assailed today at the Congregational ministers' meeting in Pilgrim Hall by the Rev. Dr. M. D. Kneeland, secretary of the Lord's Day League. Dr. Kneeland asked the ministers to condemn all military drills on Sunday.

"In asking this I do not want to appear as against preparedness," said this minister. "But this use of Sunday for military drills and manoeuvres is just as reprehensible as some other practices on that sacred day." If we look back in history we find that George Washington scorned such a use of Sunday when he heard of attempts to hold military parades on that day. Let us have some respect for the day."

The ministers condemned military drills on the Lord's Day.

Paris, May 15.—Today's War Office communique says: "South of the Somme, near Vermandevillois, we made a successful surprise attack, which enabled us to destroy an enemy's trench in the Germans' first line."

Somebody Wants Your Extra Room

The young people in Boston who live in furnished rooms and boarding houses are constantly looking for attractive places that seem like home and especially at this time of the year. Spring always brings with it the longing for new and different surroundings, and right now, when that desire is strongest, is the time to rent that extra room by putting your Room to Rent ad in the American.

Many families are leaving their larger apartments for smaller, more compact flats, and this necessitates the finding of many new rooms. The new flat was probably found through the American.

Send the American your Room to Rent ad today and be sure of securing the right kind of tenants—the ones who stay.

SIR ROGER CASEMENT ARRAIGNED IN LONDON

companied Casement and Bailey to Ireland in the German submarine.

Bailey had been living in disguise for more than three weeks while Scotland Yard scoured the British Isles for him. Sir Roger, who is one of the most famous prisoners arraigned since the outbreak of the war, was described as having no occupation and no fixed place of abode. Bailey was described as a soldier.

PRISONERS CHEERFUL.

The charge against the defendants was that they, on various occasions between November, 1914, and April 21, 1916, unlawfully, maliciously and traitorously commit treason within and without the realm of England in contempt of our sovereign lord King and his laws, to the evil example of others and in like case contrary to the due allegiance of the said defendants."

The prisoners, especially Sir Roger, seemed to be in excellent health and spirits. They were taken to the court under an escort. The trip was made secretly to prevent any untold demonstration. There was room for only sixty spectators in the court, but despite the limited space a great crowd clamored for admission this morning and the police on duty outside the courthouse had a difficult time in restraining them.

Since his arrest Sir Roger had denied considerable time preparing data to be used in his own defence. He attempted to secure Sir Edward Carson, the leader of the Ulster Unionists, to defend him, it was reported, but failed. If this report was true, the circumstances presented a strange anomaly, for Sir Edward Carson is at the head of an Irish faction which is bitterly opposed to home rule for Ireland.

SMITH OPENS CASE.

Historic Bow Street Court was filled to capacity when Sir Frederick E. Smith, the Attorney-General, opened the case for the government. Sir Frederick began with the life history of Casement, outlining his public activities in detail.

As the Attorney-General spoke, Sir Roger sat in the dock, his chin resting upon the palm of his hand. He glanced keenly at the magistrate from time to time and then shifted his intent gaze back to the face of Sir Frederick or to the spectators.

Sir Roger seemed to enjoy the public interest which his trial had created. This interest had been heightened in the British Isles and extended beyond them by the unfolding in Ireland and the execution of the Sinn Fein leaders.

As the trial proceeded a report became current that Casement had made a long statement to the authorities which might shorten the proceedings.

While Sir Roger was far the chief centre of interest, the crowd showed considerable curiosity toward his co-defendant, Bailey, who was said to have made the journey from Germany to Ireland in a submarine.

"Sir Roger Casement drew a pension from the government until September 30, 1914, when it was withdrawn," said the Attorney-General.

"The defendant was then in Germany. The part he was destined to play was that of a man who was willing and hoped to be able to seduce from their allegiance to the King the Irish prisoners at Limburg camp, whom he addressed and lectured. The evidence shows that in January and February of 1915 Casement repeatedly addressed these prisoners."

BAILEY TAKEN IN U-BOAT.

The Attorney-General read a statement from Bailey, who declared he had joined a brigade to see if it was possible to get out of Germany. After visiting the German War Office Bailey was told to be ready to leave. He was taken aboard the submarine U-19, which set out from German waters.

"Upon sighting Tralee, Ireland, I was told that the visit was in connection with the Irish Volunteer movement," said Bailey's statement. "As the submarine neared the coast, Sir Roger Casement and myself were transferred to a collapsible boat, which overturned in the surf. We got ashore and then went back to fetch arms. Sir Roger and myself then reached Tralee.

"I was born in Dublin and was a member of the original expeditionary force in France, being captured by the Germans in September, 1914."

In detailing further the scope of Sir Roger's activities, the Attorney-General said:

"Casement's conduct required a great deal to justify it. At the Limburg camp Casement introduced himself as organizer of the Irish Volunteers. He stated he was forming an Irish Brigade and invited Irish prisoners of war to join. Casement emphasized in his addresses that everything was to be gained for Ireland by Germany's winning the war. All joining the Irish Brigade, Casement said, would be sent to Berlin to be the guests of the German government."

Sir Frederick said that the Irish prisoners treated the suggestion of Sir Roger very contemptuously. The Irish knight was hissed and booed out of camp, the Munster Fusiliers being particularly resentful.

RATIONS REDUCED.

"It is reported that Casement was was only saved from violence by the intervention of the Prussian guards," said the attorney-general.

Sir Roger smiled as he heard this and glanced at Bailey.

"The Irish prisoners who refused the proposals had their rations reduced. The few who accepted were given certain privileges and provided with green uniforms. Bailey was one of these."

The attorney-general unfolded and held up to view a flag which had been found in the boat in which Casement and Bailey made their way to shore on the Irish coast, together with maps and a flashlight. It was green with a yellow centre and bore an inscription.

Sir Frederick went on: "Casement was found by the police in Mc-Kinna's fort. When challenged he gave the name of Richard Morton of Dienham, Rucksbire, and said he was an author. After being taken to the Ardfort barracks he dropped a paper containing a code. He was charged with landing arms and ammunition and taken to London, where he disclosed his identity. Divers discovered Russian rifles of the pattern of 1905."

ROBINSON A WITNESS.

The first witness was Corporal John Robinson of the Royal Army Medical Corps, who detailed Casement's endeavors to form an Irish brigade at Limburg in Germany.

"Casement declared that he believed Germany was going to win the war, and in that case wanted Ireland to be free," the witness said.

WAR SUMMARY

While artillery fighting rules at Verdun, the Germans seem to have opened a serious movement against the British, on the face of today's dispatches.

The French official bulletin speaks of these attacks against the British lines; while the Germans themselves report minor "feeling-out" movements by reconnoitring parties and patrols.

The net result has not, thus far, been important. But a determined German attack on the British lines would assume importance second not even to the Verdun attack.

The Italians and Austrians staged their usual spirited skirmishes, without important result on either side.

The Russian advances in the Caucasus have been halted, at least temporarily. The Turks report administering a trouncing to the Russians; while the Russians admit their advance guards were compelled to retire. Taking an average between these two statements it is fair to assume the Russians have been checked after hard fighting.

To much importance has been attached to this Russian campaign. The dream of the "Russian steam roller" still possesses the imagination. As a matter of fact, in the whole campaign since the beginning of the war, the Russians have advanced across the Turkish frontier only a little over a hundred miles in the north, and have not even crossed the Turkish frontier in the south, opposite Bagdad, where much has been made of their defeats of "Turkish forces" in Persia. Whether there were any Turkish forces there may be doubted; for Persia was under British and Russian domination before the war, and is now largely under Russian rule.

The Russian advances, moreover, have been through thinly settled, mountainous, and not well defended territory. Each yard of advance makes further advance more difficult since the supply problem is enormous. And the Turks have obviously only begun to make real resistance.

If the Russians can advance another hundred miles here and there, they can raise havoc. But if the Germans could advance a hundred miles they would have Paris, Calais, and the war would be over; and if the French could advance a hundred miles the Germans would be utterly smashed.

GERMANS STRIKE AT BRITISH

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, May 15.—Only artillery actions took place on the Verdun front last night, the French war office announced today.

Heavy artillery fire was concentrated on the French positions in Avocourt Wood and on Hill No. 304, west of the Meuse.

The communique states, however, that no infantry assaults were delivered by the Germans.

In the absence of infantry fighting in the sector of the Meuse River attention was already directed to the northern end of the battle line, where the Germans delivered heavy attacks against the British front on Sunday.

French military critics, however, look for an early resumption of German pressure against the French at Verdun after the battered German regiments are rested and reorganized.

The text of the official communique follows:

"South of the Somme, near Varnaville, we made a successful surprise attack which gave us possession of enemy's trench in the German first line.

"In Champagne there was great activity on the part of both artilleries in the sectors of Maisons de Champagne and the Butte of Mesnil. An incursion into a German work west of Mont Tera enabled us to bring back fifteen prisoners.

"In the region of Verdun there was a bombardment in the sectors of Avocourt wood and of Hill No. 304.

"The night was quiet on the rest of the front."

Repulse British and French Attacks

By International News Service.

Berlin, via Sayville (by wireless), May 15.—Attacks by both the British and French delivered last night near Verdun and in Artois were repulsed, the German War Office announced today.

The British attacked near Hulluch. The French assaults were delivered on the west slope of Le Mort Homme (Deadman's Hill) on the west side of the Meuse.

Severe artillery duels were reported from many sections of the lines.

Following is the text of the official statement:

"West front—In many sections artillery was active on both sides and there have been numerous patrol engagements.

"The enemy attempted to recover a position taken by the Germans near Hulluch, but all the attacks either broke down under the German artillery fire or were repulsed in hand to hand fighting.

"French attacks in the Meuse district on the west slope of Le Mort Homme (Deadman's Hill) and near Caillette Forest were easily repulsed.

"East front—There is nothing to report.

"Balkan front—The positions are unchanged."

ROUND UP BOYS FOR DOOR KNOB THEFTS

"Door Knob Day" will be observed Wednesday in the East Boston Juvenile Court. A squad of youngsters will appear for wholesale thefts of brass knobs. Seven boys have already been sentenced. Two junk dealers were brought before Judge Barnes today. Samuel Schumaster of No. 17 Allen street, Boston, pleaded guilty to buying old metal from minors and pleaded guilty to receiving stolen property, to wit twenty-three door knobs. William Robinson, No. 221 Chelsea street, East Boston, pleaded not guilty to charges of buying metal from minors and receiving door knobs. The junkmen's cases were continued until Wednesday.

PLANS CONTROL OF CASH SPENT IN PRIMARIES

As a result of the vigorous criticism of the ineffectiveness of the Corrupt Practices Act, Representative Ammidon of Cambridge today filed with the House of Representatives a bill of thirty-five sections aimed to regulate and control the expenditure of money in State primaries and elections.

The Ammidon bill, as a whole, increases the amounts that may be expended by candidates for nomination offices, but it corrects, Mr. Ammidon said, the faulty provisions of the present law for enable candidates to escape prosecution.

The new limits for campaign expenditures are as follows in the Ammidon bill:

United States senator	$2,500	$5,000
Governor	2,500	5,000
Four executive officers of the State ticket, each	1,500	3,000
Representative in Congress	1,000	2,000
State senator	500	500
State representative, single district	150	150
State representative, double district	250	250
State representative, triple district	400	400

Candidates for any other office may spend not over $50 for each 1,000 or major fraction of 1,000 registered voters, but not over $150 for a primary or $300 for election. Any candidate may spend not over $150 for primary or election expenses. Contributions to political committees shall be included in the foregoing sums. The returns shall cover all contributions, payments or promises of value of every nature, with certain specified exceptions.

TWO ALARMS FOR EAST BOSTON FIRE

Two alarms were sounded for a fire which damaged the plant of the International Glue Company at No. 823 Marginal street, East Boston. The fire officials figured the damage $25,000.

The fire started on the first floor and was discovered by Thomas Donahue, night watchman at the American Rice Company, diagonally across the street. When District Chief Goldsmith arrived with the first pieces of apparatus, flames were shooting from all sides of the building and he immediately ordered a second alarm.

Firehouts 44 and 47, unable to reach the glue company's wharf on account of low tide, were forced to anchor in the channel and lay a long line of hose. It took five hours before the flames were under control.

REPORT FIRE PANIC ON HUDSON LINER

New York, May 15.—Fire broke out today on the Hudson River steamer Rennsselar, en route from Albany to this city. Passengers declared there was a panic, but this was denied by officers of the steamer, who said that the blaze had been confined to the linen locker.

FIRE IN MONCTON BUSINESS DISTRICT

Moncton, N. B., May 15.—Four wooden warehouses of Sumner & Company, hardware dealers, and three buildings occupied by the Reed Company, wholesale grocers, were destroyed by fire today, causing a loss of $125,000. It was the biggest fire in the city in a decade.

Waltham Liquor Case.

In connection with the campaign against illegal liquor selling started by Mayor Williams of Waltham, James McCarthy was in court today, charged with maintaining a liquor nuisance. He pleaded nolo, and the case was continued until tomorrow.

RAISING ARMY TO 206,000 A PROBLEM

By International News Service.

Washington, May 15.—The War Department faces a problem in carrying out the provisions of the bill increasing the army to a peace strength of 206,000 men.

The average enlistment in the army has run less than 45,000 a Year. It will be necessary, army experts estimate, to get 75,000 recruits a year for five years to bring the army up to the strength provided for in the new bill.

Since March 15 the War Department has been conducting an extensive recruiting campaign to carry out the provisions of the May reorganization under which the army was to be recruited to war strength by adding 20,000 men.

In the fifty-eight days of this campaign ending May 12, the total number of recruits enlisted was 6,718, at the rate of about 42,000 a year. This is hardly above the average enlistment, although during the campaign more than 100 additional recruiting offices were opened.

One way the number of recruits can be increased, officers point out, is by reducing the entrance qualifications. The 6,718 recruits obtained were out of a total of more than 20,000 applicants. Only about one in five has been accepted. The enlisting regulations will not be lessened, the officers say, until every effort is exhausted to get men up to present standards.

Army officers also believe there will be trouble increasing the State militia organizations from the present strength of 129,000 to 425,000, as provided in the new bill. The States now have trouble in recruiting their organizations to full strength.

Whether the attractive features of the bill as it relates to the militia will enable the States to increase the guard organizations almost fourfold is something about which army officers are inclined to be skeptical.

POINCARE ANSWERS KAISER

By C. F. BERTELLI,
Staff Correspondent of International News Service.

Paris, May 15.—The most significant pronouncement made by President Poincare since the beginning of the war was uttered by him at Nancy, the capital of French Lorraine.

Replying to the reference of peace proposals contained in the Kaiser's reply to the American ultimatum, President Poincare said:

The Central Empires, haunted by remorse at having begun this war and affrighted by the indignation and hatred which they have aroused among humankind, are trying to make the world believe that the allies alone are responsible for the prolongation of hostilities.

That is irony that deceives no one. Neither directly or indirectly have our enemies offered us terms of peace.

But we don't want them to offer us peace. We want them to ask us for peace. We do not want to submit to their conditions; we want to enforce our own.

We do not want a peace that will leave imperial Germany the mistress to begin another war and to hang as an eternal menace over Europe. We want a peace that will bring restoration of rights and that will carry with it guarantees of equilibrium and stability.

PURCHASE OF POISON TRACED

By International News Service.

Hartford, May 15—Mrs. May Archer Gilligan, the police claimed today, purchased a large quantity of arsenic three days before the death of her second husband, Michael W. Gilligan. This is considered by them as one of the most important links in the chain of evidence, they declared in their possession.

Mrs. Gilligan is a prisoner in the Hartford County jail charged with having caused the death of Franklin R. Andrews, who was an intimate of her Home for Aged People at Windsor.

Although there is but one specific charge, States Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn intimated that a "murder factory" was being operated there. There were forty-eight deaths in the home in five years.

THREE POUNDS OF ARSENIC.

The poison sale record of W. H. H. Mason, a druggist of Windsor, shows that Mrs. Gilligan bought at least three pounds of deadly poison there since September 11, 1908. The State police authorities who have been investigating the case for two years are in possession of this poison record.

The two purchases which the authorities consider most vital in the present investigation were made in 1913. On February 14 Mrs. Gilligan, according to the "poison book," bought ten ounces of arsenic acid. The purpose of its use was jotted down on the record as "for rats."

On February 19, 1914, Mr. Gilligan died, according to the police, in "great agony." He had alaged a will the night before leaving all his property to his wife. It was not admitted to probate on a technicality.

CORONER'S SUSPICIONS, TOO.

The next sale shows that on May 26, 1914, four days before the death of Franklin R. Andrews, in connection with which Mrs. Gilligan was arrested, she bought two ounces of arsenic, also "for rats."

Dr. Arthur J. Wolff, State bacteriologist and medical expert for the prosecution, declared his autopsy of Andrews' body showed the presence of enough arsenic to have caused death. In the body of another inmate exhumed the presence of another poison, in death-dealing amount, was discovered by the toxicologist. Its identity was not disclosed.

The only other poison which Mrs. Gilligan is recorded with having purchased, is corrosive sublimate of potash. On September 5, 1908, she bought thirteen ounces of it "for bed bugs."

To round out the list, four ounces of arsenic "for rats and mice" was purchased October 5, 1913, and a pound of arsenic, the largest amount bought at one time, on June 19, 1914.

WOMAN'S SUICIDE.

Mrs. Zola Bennett of Norwich, New England's most famous woman detective, is now associated with Captain Hurley of the State police in conducting his investigation of the mysteries of the home in Windsor.

Mrs. Bennett jumped suddenly into fame two years ago when she assisted materially in gathering the evidence and sentencing to State prison for arson Frank Howarth, a prominent Putnam lawyer, after one of the most noted trials in the history of the State.

It was said in Windsor today that those engaged in gathering evidence against Mrs. Archer-Gilligan had "tapped" the telephone wires leading into the Archer home, so that an assistant in the employ of the State police was able to listen to every conversation carried on. The tapping was done, it was said, on last Monday night, soon after the arrest of Mrs. Archer-Gilligan.

That the second body exhumed under the direction of State Attorney Alcorn was that of Mary Beckett of Guilford, was a report circulated in Windsor today. It was said that an autopsy had been performed on the body and that traces of bichloride poisoning had been found.

GIVES WOMAN $50 FOR FINDING PURSE

Miss Maud Beaton of No. 119 Park street, Dorchester, is today $50 richer because her eyesight was better than that of one of her customers. Miss Beaton is a clerk in a periodical store at No. 1445 Dorchester avenue. When asked by a customer if she found a pocketbook that he had lost Miss Beaton walked from behind the counter and picked up the pocketbook.

The customer, on examining the contents and finding his roll intact, peeled off $50 and handed it to the clerk.

Marian Lambert, for Whose Murder Orpet Went on Trial Today

have been sent by the girl, in which he said:

COME FROM MILES ABOUT.

"Don't do anything desperate until I arrive."

This would indicate that the girl was contemplating suicide and would be a strong point for the young student, as it is on this theory that practically the whole fabric of his defense has been constructed.

The sensation among the courthouse here resembled a picnic as trial time approached. All Lake County, it seemed, had declared a holiday and drove into town in buggies, wagons and automobiles.

The State's attorneys announced at noon that the list of State's witnesses had been increased from 60 to 100.

Chief among them was Josephine Davis, the Lambert girl's closest friend and confidante. She is expected to reveal the inner secrets of Orpet's "affair" with the girl. It was this abandonment, the defence will contend, that caused Marian, to commit suicide for the defence stands firm on the suicide theory.

DRUG CLERK TO TESTIFY.

Another witness is Charles Hassinger, a drug clerk of Madison, Wis., who sold the student an empty two-ounce bottle the day Orpet left the university on the mysterious trip which never has been full explained by the defence.

Thousands of dandelions lay like a blanket of gold over the fresh green lawn surrounding the courthouse. Great blotches of yellow sunshine were pouring down through the dense foliage of mi-May. As Orpet walked forth from the gloomy jail into the Spring time parodies of the courthouse yard his pallor, emaciation and nervousness struck at the hearts of the curious hundreds who lined his pathway. He blinked and shaded his eyes.

The sunny courtroom, its tall, old-fashioned windows running from floor to ceiling was packed with panting, perspiring hundreds. A special panel of 166 men from Deerfield and Shields township filled most of the old-time benches with which the great square room is furnished.

The defence claims that the girl, despondent because Orpet was paying court to another girl, killed herself.

All the pitiful tragedy that has gone before and much of which is to follow, centres about the three oaks in Helms Woods, where the girl dropped in the snow that day in February last and died at the feet of the boy she loved.

THEIR TRYSTING PLACE.

It was there they used to meet when he was making love to her. It was there he won her heart and betrayed her trust in him. And it was there he summoned her to meet him under the promise to "make everything all right," when she wrote him at Madison that she was in need of his protection.

They met there on February 9, only three days after all that was said and done, but next day searchers found the girl's body, lying by the three oaks and Orpet's tracks leading away.

The State and the defense have measured and staked and plotted and photographed Helms Woods and the three oaks, and all over the tract are film pack covers showing that amateurs have photographed the place almost daily.

The tragedy has not stopped with the death of Marian Lambert. Her mother has just returned home from a sanitarium where she was sent to save her from a total collapse, and her father, Frank Lambert, is perceptibly more gray and stooped and silent than he was. He is very bitter in what he will say.

"I want to see justice done—and I don't see how they can clear him," said the father this morning.

Orpet himself is very defiant and jaunty.

State's Attorney Ralph Dady would not say today that he will demand that Orpet be hanged—but he did say this:

"I shall choose jurors who are not opposed to capital punishment."

Judge Charles A. Bond has been called as a witness by the State. He will tell whether he kept cyanide where his son could have got it.

DORCHESTER BABY IS BADLY BURNED

Lillian Freeman, four years old, of No. 106 Park street, Dorchester, was badly burned about the upper body today when her clothes caught fire from matches she had been playing with. Her mother heard the child's screams and found her on the veranda with her clothes ablaze. She extinguished the flames, and a neighbor called the police. Both mother and daughter were removed to the City Hospital.

COFFMAN ASSIGNED TO U. S. S. NEW YORK

Early today Rear Admiral De Witt Coffman, who has been commander-in-chief of the third division of the Atlantic fleet, hauled down his flag on the battleship New Jersey at the Charlestown Navy Yard while a rear admiral's salute of thirteen guns was fired. He will go to New York, where he will hoist his flag on the superdreadnought New York.

MEDFORD SUNDAY BALL PLAYER HURT

Leon Esam, 15 years old, of Salem street, Medford, is at the Massachusetts General Hospital with a fractured jaw and his upper lip split from nose to mouth as the result of being struck by a baseball bat while catching without a mask in a game on the old golf links in Medford. He is in a serious condition.

NEW HAVEN MEN FACE STRIKE

Ninety per cent. of the clerks employed on the 2-mile system of the New Haven road today voted to strike, beginning Wednesday, unless their demand for a 7 per cent. increase is met.

Seventeen hundred clerks will be affected by the strike, and the road today took steps to offset it by securing several hundred strike-breakers.

The original demands of the clerks for a 15 per cent. increase and a half overtime and universal Saturday half holiday were submitted on December 29, 1915, and rejected by the company. Modified demands were then submitted on April 11 last, which were rejected, together with a third compromise of 7 per cent. Manager Hardo's statement says:

Upon receipt of the outcome of the vote on the ballot which indicated that substantially 90 per cent. of the clerks were in favor of rejecting the original 15 per cent. increase offered, the following proposal was submitted to Mr. Forrester and your committee:

"Twenty cents per day to clerks getting $2 per day or less.

"Six per cent., with a minimum of fifteen cents, to men getting $2.01 to $2.50 per day, and

"Five per cent., with a minimum of fifteen cents, to men getting $2.50 per day or more."

These figures represent an increase of 6.4 per cent. of the payroll and are in excess of any settlement heretofore made with your committee.

LUTHER V. GILMORE DEAD AT MALDEN

Luther V. Gilmore, formerly of Brewer, Me., died today at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Edward Treland, in Malden, aged seventy-three years. Mr. Gilmore served throughout the Civil War as sergeant of the Fifteenth Maine regiment, after which he engaged in business in his native State. About a year ago he retired, turning over his business to a son, Ralph, and came to Malden to make his home. Death was due to paralysis. He is survived by one son and five daughters.

MALDEN BOY KILLED IN ARMY OF ALLIES

John X. Tupper, of Malden, was killed in the trenches in France while fighting for the allies, according to a cable received today by his relatives. The cable, stating that Tupper met his death on April 26, arrived about ten minutes before a letter written by the young man on April 26. Tupper was nineteen years old and was serving with the Canadian Twenty-Fifth Overseas Battalion.

ARLINGTON MAN STRUCK BY TRAIN

Henry DeNapoli, No. 99 Montague street, Arlington, was knocked down by a taxicab today at the corner of Washington and State streets. At Relief Hospital it was found he had suffered a fracture of the left thigh. The taxi was the property of the Armstrong Transfer Company and was driven by Alfred J. Kebble of Pearl street, Charlestown.

SEEK TO PREVENT RAILROAD STRIKE

New York, May 15.—Federal mediators today conferred with representatives of the New York Central and West Shore lines in an effort to effect a compromise that would prevent a threatened strike of 1,000 telegraphers and signal men on the railroads. The union leaders declared that if today's conference did not break the prevailing deadlock a strike order would be issued at once.

FINE BOY OF 18 AS RECKLESS AUTOIST

Roger W. Pigeon, eighteen years old, of No. 174 Lexington street, East Boston, was arraigned before Judge Rossoni in the Chelsea Court today charged with violating the automobile laws by reckless driving and endangering the lives of pedestrians on the State highway at Revere. The defendant was found guilty and fined $25.

TAFT IS WITNESS IN RIGGS BANK CASE

Washington, May 15.—Former President Taft today appeared in the District of Columbia Criminal Court as a character witness for Charles C. Glover, president of the Riggs National Bank, during the trial of the Riggs National Bank officials on perjury charges. Mr. Taft testified that President Glover's reputation is "excellent."

HAPGOOD MAY BE N. Y. POSTMASTER

Washington, May 15.—That Norman Hapgood will be named by President Wilson for postmaster of New York, is the latest report on the New York postoffice controversy here. A high official of the administration said that the nomination of Mr. Hapgood for the office was one of the early possibilities.

DR. WAITE 'THEF IN BOYHOOD'

New York, May 15.—In preparing for the trial of Dr. Arthur W. Waite for murder in the first degree in killing his father-in-law, John E. Peck, set for next Monday before Justice Shearn, Assistant District Attorney Dooling has made public new information that recently came into his hands concerning the past of the prisoner. It substantiates, he says, all the former statements that Waite was a thief from childhood and that he began while an organist in a church in Menominee, Mich. This was eleven years ago.

Waite is charged with having administered arsenic to his wealthy parent through marriage to get his estate, said to have been extensive. Mr. Dooling says that his investigation of the evidence against Waite has not developed any good in his behalf and that he must have been inherently bad. He says his church stealings came through a custom of the ushers to place the collection baskets near his place in the choir loft and from them he took a sum placed at about $300. When the church of-cials allowed him to go on his promise never to return to the town the incident was closed, until it now comes out through investigation into his past life.

Mr. Dooling said, too, that Waite had taken the money about the time he began to prepare himself for a course in dentistry. A short time later, while employed in a store in Mackinac Island, he stole a considerable sum of money, but was not prosecuted through the intervention of his parents.

Mrs. Clara Peck Waite, wife of the prisoner, is expected in this city from Grand Rapids, Mich., on Thursday, at which time she will give a statement to Mr. Dooling. She has already made a detailed statement, but it is desired to go further into her information before calling her as a witness against her husband. She has turned over many letters and given other information that would indicate that Waite had married her with the avowed intention to kill her parents and to get the money they would leave to her and her brother, Mrs. Peck died in January, while her husband died in the early part of March. Since his arrest Waite has made two complete confessions of his guilt in killing his father of his wife. He admitted he wanted money, and this was one way that he saw open to get it. It is the contention of the prosecutor that he intended to flee the country as soon as the estate of the elder Peck was settled. The name of a woman has been used in this connection.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR J. P. O'RIORDEN

The funeral of Jeremiah P. O'Riordan, one of the leading contractors of Boston, was held today at St. Mary's Church, Charlestown. Solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by the pastor, Rev. Dr. John F. Mahon, assisted by the Rev. James H. Phalan as deacon and Rev. Daniel J. Donnelly sub-deacon and Rev. Michael Murphy was master of ceremonies. In the sanctuary were many priests. Mayor Curley attended the services. Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald was a pallbearer.

RANGER HOMEWARD BOUND FROM CRUISE

The Massachusetts nautical training ship Ranger, which has been on a preliminary cruise of a month, will return to Boston on May 19, it was Lt. Hourigan today telegraphed to Secretary William Dimick of the commission. The Ranger would sail from the Old Point Comfort today bound north. Governor McCall and staff will review the Ranger and its complement of 150 cadets May 23. The itinerary for the summer cruise has not yet been arranged.

"JAMAICA CENTRALS" IN MINSTREL SHOW

Tonight and tomorrow the "Jamaica Centrals" will present an old-fashioned minstrel show, "The Peace Jubilee," at Boston College Hall, under the direction of Joseph Cudahan. The end men are "Bill" Hogan, John McGrath, Joseph Cavanagh and Arthur Mellom.

Marion Clifford will lead the "Summer Sketch," assisted by ten couples. Little Edna Rock will delight the most harsh critic of classic dancing in her "Butterfly Sketch."

PRESIDENT SHAKES HANDS OF TOURISTS

Washington, May 15.—President and Mrs. Wilson returned from their over-Sunday trip on Chesapeake Bay shortly before 9 a. m. today. They went directly to the White House, where the President had arranged to meet a number of out of town tourists who desired to shake hands with him.

"Kissing and Cursing" by Boston Employers Hit in New Campaign

Miss Helen Mary Heizer of the Office Workers' Union, who tells of campaign against kissing by employers.

An anti-kissing campaign with the object of reforming employers, was started in Boston business offices today, according to Miss Helen Mary Heizer of the Office Workers' Union.

This organization, consisting of stenographers, bookkeepers, accountants and office employes, has started a fight to secure better moral conditions in business offices. Miss Heizer stated in an interview with the AMERICAN.

The main objectives of the campaign will be to stop kissing and cursing by employers and to end slave-driving "efficiency" office managers. Every officeworker, male and female, has been asked to join the movement.

ASKS "SQUARE DEAL."

"We believe that co-operation is the life of trade, as against the old saying that competition is the life of trade," said Miss Heizer. "The new maxim is suited to these modern days and we are only too glad to meet our employ's work on such terms.

"We are ready and willing to give the very best service we can in return for reasonable wages and the 'square deal,' and, as all employers are organized for their own benefits so like-wise we are organized for ours.

"We fully realize our importance in the great industrial machine, and that only under the best conditions can we accomplish the best and greatest amount of work for our employer. In other words we demand conditions conducive to good health and clear morals first of all.

"Secondly, a minimum wage is not beyond our expectations. We have figured out to the very last penny as to the amount on which we can live, and too many of us know the amount we earn suffer at present. Instances of both known to us, and, while we credit the just and appreciate the fact that there is such a thing as fair wages in some cases, still we must protect our workers from injustice and the 'sweat-shop' wage.

ETIQUETTE IN OFFICES.

"Office etiquette is a new term to some people, but it is a term which means much. There is office etiquette quite as much as there is drawing-room etiquette, and the same principles should be at work in either place. Woman, because she is a worker, is no less dignified than the idle woman at the bridge table, and should be able to command respectful language and actions from her employer. In her position of an employe many people are inclined to look upon her as an inferior and even speak of her as 'nothing but a stenographer.' Many men know that they could not run their businesses without their stenographers, and some are aware that the stenographer is an important factor in maintaining the idle woman.

"The kissing question is a serious problem.

"Cases are known where girls have been kissed while merely interviewing an employer about a prospective position. And hundreds of Boston business men think that it is a part of their stenographer's duties to kiss them and allow the men to hug them.

"Still another breach of office etiquette is to be found in the swearing employer, who considers it not only his privilege to swear in the presence of women, but to swear at them.

"Consider the clerical worker or young girl stenographer who is now receiving $5 per week. (The present minimum wage) and see just how far that $5 will go. If she is lucky enough to get into a working girls' lodging house of some sort, it is possible that she can get a room for $3, with another girl, but there are her meals, which will cost at least $3 with the most careful scrimping. It is easy to see that even with the minutest economy all this girl can do is merely to eke out an existence. And there is the story of why and how hundreds of young girl stenographers go wrong.

AVERAGE GIRL'S EXPENSES.

"The minimum wage of $15, which we demand, is not sufficient, even. The following scale shows the girl's average necessary living expenses:

Single room	$3.50
Meals	4.00
Carfare	1.00
Laundry	1.00
Incidentals	.50
Totals	$10.00

Promoters of the new campaign say there are fifteen open unions in this country and are confident the employers of Boston will co-operate in urging their workers to join.

The officers of the union are: Alma Wiesner, Caroline avenue, Jamaica Plain, president; Patrick J. Farrell, Norway street, Boston, vice-president; Lillian Gold, William street, Medford, recording secretary; Gertrude Ford, Tremont street, Newton, financial secretary; Lotta M. Britton, Lunt street, Norfolk Downs, treasurer.

BABY FALLS FROM THE THIRD STORY

While looking out the window from the third floor of his home today at No. 279 Athens street, South Boston, little three-year-old Joseph Montorny lost his balance and fell to the street. He was picked up by James Foubey, who was passing in his automobile, and taken to the Carney Hospital. He was found to be suffering from a fractured skull.

CUMMINS LEADS IN PLEDGED DELEGATES

By International News Service.

Washington May 15.—The total number of delegates elected to the Republican National convention is 823, of whom 272 are instructed. Instructed delegates have been chosen to date as follows: Cummins 74, Sherman 54, Burton 48, Fairbanks 53, La Follette 25, Roosevelt 6.

PUSH HUNT IN WAR ON ARSON

District Attorney Pelletier announced today that the investigation of the arson trust would be continued sharply.

Since the indictments and arrests on Saturday and Sunday many anonymous letters with further important information have been received by the District Attorney; and he again today asked that persons who have information to give come to him and give it in person, promising that their identity will be kept secret.

The Grand Jury will next come in for a regular sitting June 5; but it is possible, if evidence is secured to warrant it, that a special session will be called in the meantime.

The investigation has already reduced the fire losses about one-third over the corresponding period of last year. It has reduced the number of fire alarms 97 in a similar period; and it has apparently driven the incendiaries to cover, for there has been not one obvious incendiary fire since the probe was announced.

FIND "ARSON PAINT."

An amazing variety of incendiary devices have been discovered by the investigators, and one of the most novel was an "arson paint," in which the white lead was mixed with gunpowder, so that when a room so painted was set afire, the fire would spread with explosive rapidity.

Many of the incendiary fires were surrounded by bizarre and dramatic circumstances. In the case of one woman under arrest for arson, it is claimed that after she had set the fire, she left her two children nearby, and that they were suffocated. Each was insured.

As a result of the whole investigation, dating from about April 1, there are twenty-four persons under arrest.

Of this number twenty-one are men and three are women.

Four other men are being sought on indictments returned as a result of the investigation.

The first batch of indictments were returned some time ago. There were eighteen indictments in that group, against twelve persons. All twelve of those persons have been arrested.

Saturday twelve indictments were returned against seventeen persons one of these persons had previously been indicted in the first group and was arrested.

MUST BE FOUR SUSPECTS.

Of the seventeen indicted Saturday, including this man, thirteen have been arrested and four are yet to be found.

Thus twenty-five arrests have been made, one man being arrested twice; and twenty-four persons are under arrest.

Harrison, arrested Saturday and Sunday, were expected to be arraigned today.

Harry Halpert, thirty-seven, a clockmaker of Marion street, East Boston, and his wife Fannie, twenty-nine, were the first arrested in yesterday's roundup.

They are charged with burning a dwelling on Marion street, owned by Benjamin White of Morris street, in April. Other counts charge them with burning furniture and conspiring.

Michael Blum, also of Marion street, was arrested on the charge of being in conspiracy with the Halperts. Morris Hallinoff, twenty-eight, an actor and bookbinder, with a Marion street address, is charged with attempting to burn a building on Frederick street, South Boston.

MRS. ADAMS PLANS SUIT FOR MILLIONS

Boise, Idaho, May 15.—Suits to recover alleged dower rights in millions of dollars' worth of New York real estate will be begun by Mrs. George Washington Adams, of this city, she states. At her request similar actions were discontinued last week, it is learned here.

Mrs. Adams claims to have been the legal wife of the late Edward Tracy, a wealthy broker, and the property she seeks to recover is now in the possession of Andrew Carnegie and Mrs. Henry C. Phipps.

LANGHORNE'S MEN PUSH INTO MEXICO IN HUNT FOR RAIDERS

border are arming themselves for the trip since the Mexican outposts fired across the border at Dorbant's ranch.

Reports of an impending raid on Sierra Blanca, about one hundred miles east of here, were not supported in advices received early in the day. Other advices minimized the report of an attack on McKinney Springs in back of the Langhorne column.

State guardsmen are still gathering at mobilization points at Douglas, Columbus and San Antonio. Some of them are poorly equipped, and it is certain that a large number will be reported unfit for duty.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after-effects. They don't salivate the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids.

It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take 10 to 25 grains Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. At 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

ALMOST BALD WITH ECZEMA ON HEAD

Started with Blistery Pimples. Itched so Badly and Hurt so Was Almost Crazy.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"I had eczema which started with blistery pimples along the edge of my hair and went all over my head. It itched so badly and hurt so that I was almost crazy, and would not sleep, and had to walk the floor at night. My hair all fell out and I was almost bald. I was in the house for two weeks.

"The trouble lasted about eight months and I had many treatments, but they did not do me any good. Then I got a cake of Cuticura Soap and one of Cuticura Ointment, and in a few days I saw little fine hairs coming. Now I am entirely healed and have no marks of any kind." (Signed) A. Frenier, Plantsville, Conn., July 29, 1915.

Report Mexicans in New Raid in Texas

By International News Service.

El Paso, May 15.—A telegram received here from Sierra Blanca early today said that Mexican raiders were approaching the town.

Sierra Blanca is about seventy-five miles east of El Paso and twenty miles north of the border.

The small garrison there was recently reinforced because of the isolated location.

The telegraph operator at Sierra Blanca reported that a force of 500 Mexicans crossed the Rio Grande one south from that point this morning and were advancing on the town.

The Mexican residents of Sierra Blanca left the place early yesterday morning without giving any explanation for their sudden departure. It is now believed that they received information that the town was to be attacked.

The women and children of the town have been concentrated in a small area and the men are all armed preparatory to aiding in the defence of their homes.

The population of Sierra Blanca is about 200.

General Scott Back From Border Conference

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, May 15.—Major General Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff, accompanied by General Weaver of the Coast Artillery and his corps of aides, reached his office in the War Department at 9 o'clock this morning. General Scott smiled when asked whether he would comment on the Mexican situation.

"Not now," he said. "I am here to report to my superiors and will tell them all that transpired."

General Scott refused to comment on the report that he and General Obregon had reached a "gentleman's agreement" providing for the deposition of American troops in Northern Mexico.

Secretary of War Baker held a brief conference with the general after he arrived at the department. Afterwards he was brim full of confidence that the real crisis had been passed and that the dispatch of his chief lieutenant, and said:

"It may be several days before we can reach a complete agreement on the Mexican situation. But general Scott is very hopeful. He has explained that he presented the position of the United States to General Obregon, and we believe that when the Mexican War Minister reaches Mexico City his views will be received in the attitude of the de facto government. The situation is at least far from being very dangerous."

According to the latest word from the border, General Funston is now distributing his troops in accordance with the plans prepared by the War College in the hope of preventing any further raids.

General Funston wants some 20,000 additional men. A good part of these will be furnished by the Coast Artillery organized as infantry. But to get additional cavalry it will be necessary to call upon the organized militia units of that branch, most of whom are clamoring for service.

Reports that Mexican units, presumably Carranzista, are moving into positions where they could cut General Pershing's lines of communications, are not troubling War Department chiefs. They say that Pershing is keeping posted on every movement of the Mexican troops in his district and that he has his men so distributed that they not only could retain their positions indefinitely, but also could assume the offensive in most of the region.

The Mexican troops reported operating in the territory near the Big Bend district are said to be Carranza troops who for the first time seem to be co-operating with the Americans. They are trying to drive the Big Bend raiders north so they will be caught between the American cavalry under Colonel Sibley and the Carranzista units.

Train Militia to Guard the Border

By L. V. H. RUCKER.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

San Antonio, Texas, May 15.—General Funston will send militia forces from here to the border as soon as they can be whipped into shape for active service. American officers believe that Mexican raids will be repeated and are therefore anxious to get additional forces to the long border front as soon as possible.

It is expected that the next depredations will occur in the Brownsville district, but other unprotected points on the border may be made the object of Mexican attacks, the bandits continuing their efforts to arouse bitter feeling between the countries.

South of the border new efforts are being made to cripple the expedition of General Pershing. Reports received today state that Mexicans have fired plains and woods in the districts occupied by the American troops, with the intention of burning the grazing grounds of the cavalry horses.

General Funston is himself directing the equipment and training of the State militia forces concentrated here. He is determined that nothing shall be left undone to furnish the border with adequate protection.

MISS ROSAMOND ELIOT TO WED

SOCIETY TO HEAR MISS KATHLEEN BURKE

PHOTOGRAPH BY BACHRACH

MISS ROSAMOND ELIOT.
She will wed Frederic Burnham at Manchester on Saturday.

Boston society will be well represented at the wedding of Miss Rosamond Eliot, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amory Eliot of the Copley-Plaza and Manchester-by-the-Sea, to Frederic Burnham, Saturday, in the Manchester Congregational Church.

Mrs. Henry St. John Smith (Countess Wharton) will be the matron of honor.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast reception will take place at "Wildwood," the Eliot Summer home, after which the couple will go away for a wedding trip. Mrs. Eliot made her debut three years ago. She is a sister of Mrs. Alfred Codman and Mrs. Joseph Lovering.

Miss Gertrude Baker, Miss Alice Bremer, Miss Alice Munro, Miss Catherine Whittier and Marjorie Fuller are this Winter's debutantes, left yesterday for the two weeks' training at the presidential camp of the National Service School at Chevy Chase, just outside of Washington.

BURNING OILS ON WHARF SCARE IMMIGRANTS

Eighty-five immigrants at the local immigration station were badly frightened by a fire at No. 60 Long wharf, in the plant of George D. Robbins, disinfectants, early today.

Burning oils made thick, black smoke, which poured out of the windows of the building and caused the immigrants to hastily seize their few belongings and prepare to flee.

The fire started on the second floor of the three-and-a-half-story brick building, from an unknown cause. The building, in which disinfectants are manufactured, was filled with oils on which the blaze fed.

The only employes were on the first floor at the time the blaze was discovered. They dashed outside, and an alarm was turned in. The fire apparatus was forced to make his way down the crowded dock, but in a short time had succeeded in drowning out the fire, which was confined to the second floor. The loss was estimated by District Chief McDonough at $300.

SALEM MAN DEAD IN VERDUN FIGHTING

Mrs. Leone Neve of Cabot street, Salem, has received word from the French government that her husband, Pierre C. S. Neve, twenty-seven, was killed in the fighting in and about Verdun. He was connected with the French aviation and artillery corps.

Neve was employed as chauffeur and automobile auctioneer by Paul S. Chaput, a Salem real estate dealer. Besides a wife here he leave two children. They have been receiving an allowance of $1 a week from the French government.

THEFT OF BUNDLE OF MEAT CHARGED

Joseph King, forty-six, colored, of Cambridge street, West End, was held until tomorrow in the Municipal Court today on the charge of stealing a bundle containing meat and other provisions from Fred Griffin of East Weymouth on April 28.

The bundle was recovered by the police, but the meat became unpalatable after being kept for some time in the City Hall Station and had to be thrown away, thereby destroying part of the evidence. A bottle of olives still remains, however.

FINED FOR DOING WORK ON SUNDAY

James Merchants of Lewis street, Boston, was before Judge Bosson in the Chelsea District Court today, charged with breaking the Lord's Day. Merchants was arrested by the Revere police in a crusade against persons doing carpentry work on Sunday. When searched at the station a revolver was found on his person, Judge Bosson fined him $50 on the dangerous weapon charge and $5 on the other charge.

SUNDAY SENDS SON TO SETTLE SITE

Billy Sunday's son, George, business manager of the evangelist's campaign, is expected in Boston this week, to personally investigate the trouble which has arisen here on the matter of a tabernacle site. His coming is regarded as evidence that the evangelist is not satisfied with the present situation here. It is believed that he will definitely decide whether his father will come here next Fall, and, if so, where he will preach.

Boston Waking Up to Crusade for Day of More Daylight

Three nations have joined the world-wide movement to set clocks back one hour during the Summer, the latest recruits being the Netherlands, enmark and Sweden.

The "Burning Daylight" movement, as it is called, has been taken up with enthusiasm by business men all over the world, as it gives them an extra hour of light each day from May until September.

The plan has been adopted in parts of Canada, and has been discussed by members of the New York Stock Exchange. Boston business men are much interested in the plan.

Chaplain Tells Plans to Make Prison Better

"If you want to get the most out of the prisoners, you must segregate them," claimed Chaplain W. H. Whitney of the State Prison in his address today before the Baptist ministers in Chipman Hall.

He paid a high tribute to former Warden Thomas Mott Osborne of Sing Sing Prison. He said:

"Our prison today should be more corrective than punitive in methods and this is what is coming to pass. We do not want to send a man to prison to make him worse, but through his experience there make him feel he has been helped to give up his old ways of making a living, if he is a burglar, and that there is always some higher impulse to touch within him.

"You may like to know that 85 per cent. of the prisoners who leave State prison do not return and we intend to increase this percentage.

Gasoline Starts Malden Fire Auto That Was "Balky"

Auto Chemical C of the Malden Fire Department was called on to Forest street crossing of the Boston & Maine while hurrying to a fire early today. The driver dismounted and, lifting the hood, peered into the interesting arrangements of the engine. An interested throng of about 200 spectators gathered and offered suggestions. The trouble could not be located.

After the crowd had pushed the truck across the track somebody peered into the tank and then hurriedly sent a passing garage man returning with a five-gallon can of gasoline. Then the truck went to the fire, which did not amount to much.

SHIPPING BILL COMES UP IN THE HOUSE

By International News Service.

Washington, May 15. — Under pressure from the White House, Congressional leaders today planned to jam the administration ship purchase bill through the House before the end of the week. President Wilson and Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo made it clear to the House leaders that they looked upon the shipping measure as the most important bill remaining undisposed off on the administration programs, and it will be driven through the House under party whip and spur.

House leaders will make a vigorous effort to dispose of the pending rural credits bill providing for a system of land mortgage banks before the House adjourns today. Indications of a desire to delay action on the measure on the Republican side of the House prompted a hurry call for all pressing Democrats today, and efforts were made to round up every available vote.

With the rural credits bill out of the way, a drastic special rule to cut every debate on the ship purchase bill will be brought in tomorrow. The leaders planned to frame a rule that would bring the bill to a vote after three days of consideration.

The adoption of a clause in the shipping bill that would take the government out of active operation of a ship line five years after the close of the European war has conciliated what promised to be a vigorous opposition to the measure. House leaders believe that in its present form the Democratic side of the House will be practically solid for the bill.

THREE STORES BURN IN SOMERVILLE

A fire starting from an overheated oven in the bakery of Falla Bros., on Pearl street, Somerville, spread to three other stores. The police estimated the damage at $2,000. The fire damaged a printing shop, a Chinese laundry and the paint shop of William Logan on Dana street.

METHODISTS TO ELECT BISHOPS THIS WEEK

By International News Service.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., May 15.—What promises to be the most important week of the Methodist Episcopal General Conference opened today with many great church problems to be passed upon.

During this week bishops will be elected and editors, general secretaries and publishing agents of various church papers selected.

The committee on episcopacy submitted its report of the conference today and asked that seven bishops be elected. A minority report insists that six bishops are sufficient.

A new episcopal residence at Pittsburgh was recommended in the majority report. The minority, however, stated that the Pittsburgh residence was unnecessary on the ground that the bishop of Philadelphia could supervise the Pittsburgh episcopate.

Another subject that held the attention of the conference was the reconsideration of the journal of Saturday. This was done because the journal incorrectly stated that the conference struck out the paragraph regarding labor unions, whereas the delegates merely voted on two lines to give labor unions preference over present employes in the Methodist Book Concern.

PARZEIN TRIAL ON; CHARGE 2 MURDERS

Adam Parzein, accused of two murders, was today placed on trial before Judge Hardy in a special session of the Superior Court at Pemberton square. He is charged with murdering Mrs. Belle Ostrovick and her seventeen-year-old daughter Anna, with a 38-calibre revolver, at their home in Chelsea, January 17.

District Attorney Pelletier is prosecuting. A venire of 100 citizens was summoned. Judge Hardy told the veniremen that they ought to be willing to serve unless prevented by ill-health or other good cause. He said the fact that the jurors were allowed $5 a day showed how important the Legislature considered their duty. He said they would not be locked up at night, but would be permitted to go home at the close of each day.

HALED INTO COURT ON WEDDING DATE

This was the twenty-seventh anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Robertson of No. 77 Plummer avenue, Winthrop, and they celebrated the event in the East Boston Court. Mrs. Robertson was there to complain against her husband for non-support. John was penitent. He pleaded guilty. Judge Barnes was lenient because of the anniversary. He placed Robertson on probation, but ordered him to pay his wife $5 a month.

DRIVER HELD IN DEATH OF 6-YEAR-OLD

Ceylon T. Hamilton, driver of the ice cream wagon which knocked down and killed six-year-old Caramela Carabine, Saturday afternoon in South Boston, was arraigned in court today. He was charged with manslaughter, and the case was continued until May 25. He was held in $5,000 bonds.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were strong at noon despite the realization selling which had distinguished the morning. The market had been active on the advance, first hour transactions totalling more than 200,000 shares. A strong demand for zinc issues developed suddenly and Butte & Superior and American Zinc each advanced several points. Reading sold above 92, its highest yet. Allis-Chalmers was very strong because of expectations as to the current dividend and payment on deferred ones. Crucible and New York Air Brake were among the strong war order issues.

Stocks were strong in New York at the opening, a number advancing more than a point. Willys-Overland gained eight and Studebaker three. Motor cars, in fact, were an early feature. Reading was strong among railroads, and they were higher as a class. Reading sold at a new high record price. There was less demand for munition issues, with Westinghouse an exception. Its rifle business is getting much attention from traders. It is said that it has made a great success in this new line of production. At the end of an hour Canadian Pacific was conspicuous in the railway list, having advanced nearly two points, while Reading had declined from its high because of profit taking. American Locomotive and Westinghouse were strong industrials.

The Boston market began firm with Boston & Maine a feature. It was active as well as strong. The local list followed the New York lead and the prices ruled higher still at the end of an hour. Butte & Superior was then up 1⅜ at 95, New Haven was up 1¼ at 63½ and Boston & Maine 1¼ at 58. Most advances were fractional. But they were general. Coppers were quiet as a class. This was also true of a number of specialties which recently have been much in evidence.

London metal prices continued to reflect the scarcity of copper in the United Kingdom. Spot advanced £2, futures £4 and electrolytic £2. Spot tin was off £1, futures 10s, and Straits £1 10s. Spot lead and futures were off 5s. Spot spelter was up £2 and futures were unchanged.

Electrolytic copper was quoted at £125 a ton in London and spot delivery at £143. The price for the latter is equivalent to 23⅛ cents a pound.

BAKER, UTICA GLOBE FOUNDER, IS DEAD

Utica, N. Y., May 15.—Thomas F. Baker, sixty-nine, editor and one of the founders and owners of the Utica Saturday Globe, who rose from a position as printer to great wealth within a period of a few years, died at his home here today after a long illness. He was a native of Hartford, Ct.

Hotel Man Murdered.

White Plains, N. Y., May 15.—Augustus Guttenger, proprietor of the Lakeside Inn, was found murdered today. He had been shot and stabbed. Robbery was the motive.

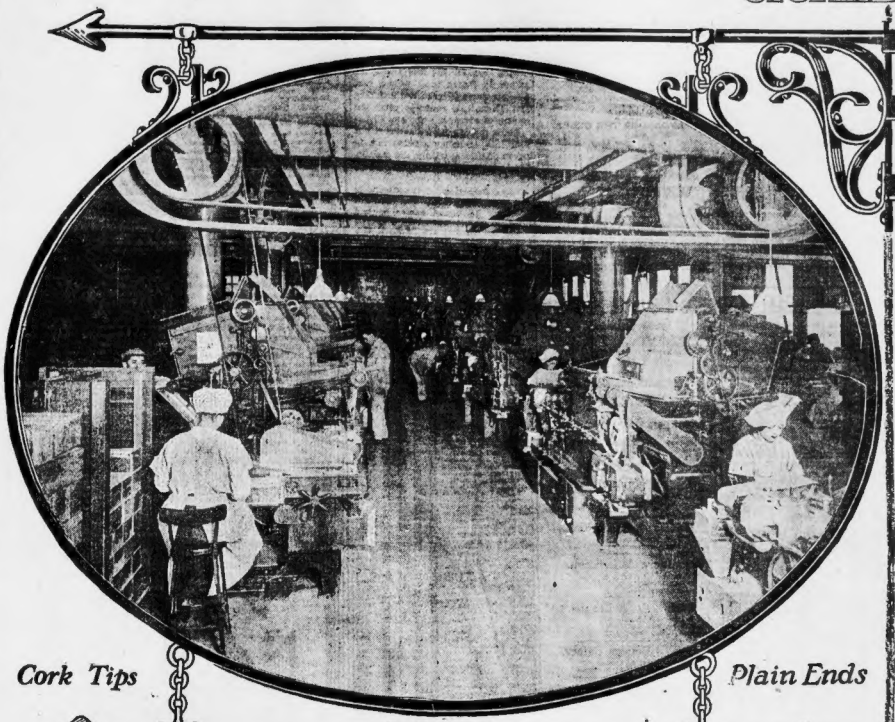
EGYPTIENNE STRAIGHTS CIGARETTES



Cork Tips — Plain Ends

GENTLEMEN,
THESE ALMOST HUMAN MACHINES EACH TURN OUT 350 STRAIGHTS EVERY MINUTE

THESE wonderful mechanisms were designed and perfected by The American Tobacco Company. The completeness of their labor is uncanny, so human is it. All the girls in freshly laundered caps and aprons are needed for is to lift the finished cigarettes from the trays where they drop unceasingly as they are made.

LAST week we showed you how the tobacco was shredded. The shredded tobacco is placed in a drum at the top of the machines pictured above. On the extreme right of each you will notice a roll of paper. It is the best French cigarette paper, free from all chemical and mineral properties. The ash burns white, not black. This paper is fed into the machine in much the same way as into a cash register.

FIRST it is printed with the STRAIGHTS insignia. Then it threads along, being twisted and filled with tobacco—pure Turkish, remember—the twisted paper being tightly and perfectly wrapped around the tobacco, sealed and the cigarettes cut into the proper lengths.

EACH machine makes two hundred thousand cigarettes a day. The demand for STRAIGHTS can best be appreciated by noting the battery of machines in the picture.

IF YOU are planning a visit to New York City we invite you to visit the STRAIGHTS factory—the plant M'Cann of the New York Globe called "A Poem of Sanitation." A postal to 337-347 West 27th Street, New York City, will bring the card of invitation promptly.

Red Sox Game Postponed
Champs Due to Start Up

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

THE steady drizzle, accompanied by the haze, which enveloped Boston this forenoon, prompted Manager Carrigan of the Red Sox to call off this afternoon's game with the White Sox. Manager Bill announced this fact to his players shortly before noon.

The White Sox will be here tomorrow and Wednesday. Just now, aside from the presence in their lineup of Eddie Collins, for whose services a few hundred thousand dollars (more or less) was paid, there is nothing very wonderful or hitless about them. They look to be quite a ball club on paper, but as the game is played out on the diamond the paper stuff doesn't count much.

The White Sox were beaten Saturday in a ten-inning clash that rather showed the World's Champions as being on the eve of a comeback to form. The visitors from Chicago had a combination of Felsch and J. Collins working for hits that meant runs, but otherwise their shows which were as numerous as the champions, did no damage.

The three pitchers they used were old friends, and they helped the Carrigan crew to a victory. Big Ed Walsh, who is with the club, is not likely to work against Boston, but should he be sent in there is none of the fear attached to such announcement as was once the case.

AN EVEN BREAK.

The World's Champions got through the past week with an even break on games played and are now on their own footing with Detroit, the team they must beat to win the title again. The present series with Chicago is as good an opportunity as they will get for that start which has been expected from them since their return to Fenway Park.

The Red Sox appear to be in a position to climb and they have gradually rounded into shape although their pitching staff isn't in the condition it was when they came up from Hot Springs. Leonard has done some fine twirling and hitting as well. Mays with his peculiar underhand delivery is ready as has been proven, strong and effective. Foster's work on Saturday proved beyond question that he had recovered from whatever he may have been suffering with as the result of the climatic change.

This points to Shore and Ruth to come through. Ruth has delivered some great stuff this season, and is about as hard hitting a pitcher as can be found in either league. Shore, when in the pink of condition, is a puzzle to them all. These two men, ready to work in turn, backed by the fine support which the boys can give them, should put the Red Sox into another World's Series.

FANS RECOVER.

Now that the followers of baseball have recovered somewhat from their attack of sentimentality so far as Speaker is concerned, they begin to realize that in Walker the Boston club has a fine ball player. He will fit in centrefield very nicely with Lewis on one side and Hooper on the other. This makes an outfield that any club owner might be proud of.

Hooper is a grand ball player. Quiet, unassuming but always there in condition, a fine fielder, accurate of arm and a hitter. Lewis just at present is in a batting slump as is Barry, but they are big factors in the defensive work of the club.

Janvrin, Gardner and Hoblitzel have given good account of themselves the past week and form a pretty classy infield, with Jack Barry guarding second. I can't see why a team composed of such ball players, having in addition capable second string men for all positions, should fail to win. They have the ability. For the past week they have been depressed, slow thinking and poor work on the bases. But this can be corrected by getting together with each man wide awake all the time. The race this season demands keen work for the clubs present added strength.

Fourth place as it stands today is a good position to be in from which to start a climb to the top.

The Braves are in second place, beating Pittsburgh today. They have done very well so far from a silent system standpoint, no player being fined or suspended. They have had a rest over Sunday and face a week's games that should be productive of real results.

SOCCER SHOTS

THE defeat of the J. & P. Coats by New Bedford is very much of a surprise to fans hereabouts. The former team was the favorite on account of their never being defeated at home, and was the only team to defeat the Rovers this season.

* * *

NEW BEDFORD retains the Times cup another year, shifting from the Celtics to the New Bedford F. C. President John A. Fernley of the U. S. F. A. formally presented the trophy to Captain Beardsworth.

FALL RIVER ROVERS is eliminating the Pan Americans in the fourth round American cup series will on Saturday meet the Bethlehems of Fall River in the semi-final round. Bethlehem very recently won the national cup championship for the second year by defeating the Rovers.

* * *

LYNN FOSSE again brought the General Electrics to their knees with a 3 to 1 score, and by virtue of said victory becomes the champions of the Boston and District League Northern Division.

* * *

BROCKTON having won the cham-pionship of the Southern Division Boston and District League, will play the Lynn Fossets for the trophy of the local circuit. Said game is likely to be played on Saturday.

* * *

FORE RIVER F. C. defeating Trimo is qualified for the final round of the Williamson cup, the other finalist being Charlestown F. C. The latter is on their way to the finals by playing one game in which it defeated St. Georges.

* * *

LYNN FOSSES' have been going so well of late that it is the consensus of opinions that once again the State cup will be retained at Lynn. The General Electrics are now the holders and will be until the Fossets meet either the New Bedfords or Fore Rivers.

St. John's Track Team Ready for Meets

The St. John's Preparatory School track team, under the direction of Sid Peet, is working hard in preparation for their meet with the High School of Commerce of Boston next Wednesday at St. John's, and also for the Harvard Interscholastic meet to be held at the Stadium next Saturday.

The Danvers team has a formidable array of athletes to compete against, the best interscholastic teams in the State, and should make a good showing. Bill Silvers, who has done such good work for the Prep. school team in the 100 and 220-yard distances, especially at the Coast Artillery games and the B. A. A. games, is relied upon to gather several points in these two events. He is also entered in the broad jump.

Captain Butler appears to have a good chance in the 440-yard run, while Goguen looks good in the 220-yard hurdles with Long, a South Boston lad, to win a few points in the shotput.

The team has come fast since last September under the expert coaching of Sid Peet, the old Andover trainer, and although this is his first year at the prep. he certainly has worked wonders, and his work has been shown in many instances. The entries: Hayes and Mahan, 100 yards; Hayes, 220 yards; Walsh and Butler, 440 yards; Kelliher and Allen, 880 yards; Hayes, broad jump; Donahue, high jump; O'Loughlin and Long, shot-put; Goguen, 220 low hurdles.

CELTIC'S CHAMPS IN SCOTTISH FIGHT

London, May 14.—For the thirteenth time in the club's career and for the third year in succession the famous Celtic soccer club has gained the Scottish League championship. In doing so it hung up two new records in British football. During the season the team put together the largest number of goals ever scored, totalling 116, which beat the previous best of 105 gained by Falkirk in 1907-8. The other record was made by getting 67 points, beating the former highest of 65. The club had a wonderful string of successes. Since its last defeat on November 13 it picked up 49 points out of a possible 52.

PIRATES LAY OUT ERIE.

Erie, Pa., May 13.—The Pirates took an exhibition game from the Erie (interstate League) team, 5-2. Hall stopped the contest at the end of the sixth inning.

TRIS HAS A MARK OF .392

That's Up-to-Minute Average of Ex-Red Sox Star—Hoblitzel and Konetchy Top Squads.

TRIS SPEAKER, the Red Sox's Best Bet through many a hard-fought campaign and now the Cleveland club's topliner, is hitting .775 for his first twenty-six games in Indian togs; rather, that was his average up to and including last Thursday's matinees when the appended averages were compiled.

Since then Speaker has poled out four hits, including a home run, in seven additional trips to the pan. So, Tris' UP-TO-THE-MINUTE Notch IS .392.

Dave Robertson of the Giants is the new leader in the National League. In fifteen games he has piled up the luscious average of .415, Eight behind him are Dubert, .378, and Hal Chase, .364.

The Boston leaders, among the regulars, are Hoblitzel, .323, and Konetchy, .328. Gardner, .262, is the Red Sox's runnerup to Hoblitzel, while Compton and Wagmuller, locked at .273, trail Konetchy.

Hooper's mark up to last Thursday evening was .222, so he just fails getting membership in the two .225 clubs. Duffy Lewis was sticking .217. Thomas, .200. Scott, .150. Sam Agnew, .125, and "Shanty" Ruth, .000. The delinquent Brave is Wilhoit, .218. The two tables follow:

Speaker a Riot in Saturday's Game on Polo Grounds

NOT only did Tris Speaker smash out two hits and a home run against the Yankees in Saturday's game in New York, won by the Indians, 4-2, but he put up one of his customary brilliant performances on the defense.

Said Sunday's New York Times: "The irrepressible Speaker saved trouble for his team in the ninth inning by speearing two liners into deep centre that might have got past a less fleet fielder."

Said Sunday's New York Press: "All Tris did for Cleveland was to smash in a homer and two singles and to cover all the region in centre field from second base to the bleachers."

Said Sunday's New York Tribune: "A home run and two singles were Speaker's contribution with the stick, while his uncanny judgment of batted balls, which seemed destined to favor the tide in favor of the Yankees in their ninth inning stand, made it clear that, despite his new uniform, he could cover as many square miles as ever."

GIBBONS ON SCENE FOR GO WITH LEWIS

New York, May 15.—Mike Gibbons, the world's greatest middleweight, joined the Broadway colony today for a short stay. Mike has an engagement with the English welter, Ted (Kid) Lewis, in Madison Square Garden Thursday evening. Although Gibbons came many miles to keep this date he does not believe it means an entry in his young life as a affair does to his opponent.

MR. FOHL IS AFTER WOOD

White Sox Party Has It Strong "Smoky Joe" Will Join Indians on Tris Speaker's Tip.

THE White Sox party, from Manager Rowland and Secretary O'Neill down, including the corps of demon critics in town with the Chicago club, has it that Joe Wood, the Red Sox's former best bet on the hillock, will become a member of the Cleveland Indians inside of the next few days.

President Lannin, while thus far having been unable to come to terms with "Smoky Joe," still owns the noted right-hander, so, of course, the firm of Dunn & McCoy must do business with him before it can acquire the services of the former club star of the World's Champions.

OF COURSE, THEY'RE MUM.

All concerned were mum today concerning Wood's possible purchase by Cleveland. Lannin has continued to say all Spring that Bill Carrigan will want "Smoky Joe" if the latter can show his 1913 and 1914 form. Lee Fohl, manager of the Indians, when asked by the AMERICAN'S New York correspondent this morning if he was after Wood, said he always made it a practice never to discuss any possible deals until they were consummated, so begged to be excused from discussing the matter.

The White Sox party, stopping at the Copley Square Hotel, gives it out as practically "official" that Fohl, acting upon Tris Speaker's tip, has started angling for Wood; has either made Pres. Lannin a cash bid for "Smoky Joe," or will turn one in today or tomorrow, and that the Cleveland management is prepared to pay a big price for the once-upon-a-time star right-hander, who may, or may not, be able to get up all his old stamp.

The White Sox came to Boston from New York and the scribes in the Rowland party state Joe Wood was telling his pals there he expected to be bought by Cleveland and become a member of Fohl's team before it got through its stand on Big Broadway.

WOOD ALL FOHL NEEDS.

The Indians have trimmed the White Sox seven out of eight this season and the Chicago players are practically unanimous in picking them to be a prominent factor in the American League race.

"Give Fohl another righthander, a seasoned one like Joe Wood, and the Indians will be hard to catch," said Joe Benz, one of the stars of Rowland's stab corps today.

"That's my tip, too," added "Reb" Russell, the crack southpaw. "Those Indians are no jokes and, if they don't win out, they'll be right there."

27,000 SEE TRIS MAKE N. Y. BOW

By W. B. HANNA.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The paid attendance at the Polo Grounds Saturday was a bit more than 27,000.

It is way this huge attendance made baseball history. The figures are bona fide, coming from one in a position to know, and it was the biggest crowd a Cleveland baseball team has ever played to, and Cleveland has been represented in big league baseball a long time.

It also is said to be the biggest crowd a New York American League baseball team ever has played to.

Braves Battle Pirates in Second Game Today—Show in Cleveland Sunday and Get Money.

PITTSBURGH, May 15.—Getting in an exhibition game at Cleveland yesterday, and getting the money as well as the victory, a crowd of some 5,000 fans looking on while the Braves were shutting out the Bulleys, the Sixth City's only semi-pro. team, 10-0, Stallings has his family back with us for battle No. 2 with the Corsairs.

As the Giants walloped the clan of Callahan four in a row last week, the Braves were expected to have a snap here. But they bumped into an unexpected snag Saturday, and must win today and again tomorrow in order to place the honors in the series to their credit.

The Braves have won five out of seven on the road, which is traveling at a championship clip. It will be either Nehf or Ragan on the hill today, according to Boss Stallings' forenoon report.

It was old Glen Liebhardt, one of Charley Somers' Naps, who bucked the Braves yesterday and got crushed for ten runs and twelve hits. Stallings used his regular lineup. Without, Smith and Compton did the best hitting. Barnes pitched the entire route and held the Bulleys to seven hits, only tightening up when in danger.

President Haughton made the ride over to Cleveland for the matinee.

Good Entries for Races

Old Favorites to Start

As the different hunt meetings held in the vicinity of New York are completed local followers of thoroughbred racing become more firmly convinced that the Country Club meeting of June 15 and 17 is to be the best conducted by the club in recent years. On the New York courses a majority of the horses that will compete at Brookline are racing, and favorites of other years in this section as well as importations are coming through in wonderful form.

On Saturday Mrs. Payne Whitney, who races jumpers under the name of the Greentree stable, scored three firsts. Her chief win was with Cherry Malotte, winner of last year's Country Club Grand Annual. Then Sycosett II. came through in another jumping race, and her third win resulted from the efforts of the imported jumper Marcillinus in a flat race. In the latter event the foreign thoroughbred raced off a number of good flat racers, including Abara.

It has been erroneously stated that Cherry Malotte once won two big races at Brookline on the same day. Such is not the case, though Mrs. Whitney's good racer did win the chief events of the same meeting, on different days. O'Bear, owned by Joseph E. Davis, the millionaire coal baron, has done the same thing.

HARRY LEE ON STAND.

Harry Lee of Brookline, who has been in New York for a few weeks with a stable, will be seen in the saddle at Brookline. Harry recently rode Gordon Prince to a big victory at Keswick Roy with the odds 10 to 1 against him. Gordon Prince will also be in the saddle, as well as Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., who is chairman of the board of stewards this year.

Other old favorites who will ship horses to Brookline are F. Ambrose Clark, with Knight of Mercl, Distance and Hibbler. Glen Riddle Farm with Pete Ashbrook and other good jumpers. A local favorite, Milltown Stables Aldon, will in all probability be on hand.

Among those who will make nominations are: Thomas Hitchcock, M. L. Swarts, A. J. A. Devereaux, E. A. Russell, Jr., Edward McLean, G. H. Tompkins, W. L. Crosby, Milltown Stable, Archibald Barklie, C. Brabason, M. Daly, W. J. Clothier, A. C. Schwartz, A. P. Humphreys, J. E. Widener, Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark, W. M. Carter, William Garth, J. Temple Gwathmey, H. S. Page and George deK. Gilder.

MISSED J. EVERS, MAYBE.

Chicago, May 15.—Manager Joe Tinker of the Cubs, playing his first game of the season, got a warm reception from the big Sunday crowd of 22,000 when he went to his old position at short in the game with the Giants. But Joe failed to shine. He not only went hitless, but booted one of his five chances.

DALY WANTS TO RESIGN.

Williamstown, May 15.—Fred Daly has tendered his resignation as Williams' athletic director and coach, but hopes are held out he will consent to return in the Fall and drill the football eleven. As his five-year contract has two more years to run, his resignation came as a huge surprise.

Tech Has a Good Team for Meet Saturday

At the New England intercollegiate championships which will be held next Saturday at Springfield, Technology will present the strongest team that has represented them for a number of years, and from the time and distances shown by the men in the meets this season stand an even chance of taking first honors.

In the sprints they will have practically the same team which took a place at the intercollegiate indoor championships this Winter at New York and therefore should be strong in the two dashes. In the quarter, Captain Guething is the fastest man. Since his first year at school he has been a consistent point winner.

With Ray Brown, the present New England intercollegiate champion in the mile, as their star entry in the mile and half-mile runs again this year, they should score heavily in these two events. They suffered a big loss in Fred Cooke, the winner of the two-mile run last year, who graduated, but Frank Kanaly has developed a new star in Halfacre, who to date has shown the fastest time of the New England two-milers.

Sullivan and Lawrason are doing well in the high jump and pole vault, as has Reed and Gokey in the broad jump and discus. At the Interclass meet a week ago Reed jumped close to twenty-three feet.

The team will leave for Springfield Thursday morning in charge of Coach Kanaly and Manager Tourtellotte.

KRAMER WINS BIKE RACE IN BIG FIELD

New York, May 15.—Frank Kramer's performances in the three-mile open professional race featured the afternoon's cycling sport at the Newark Velodrome yesterday. Kramer rode a splendid race, taking first honors from a field of more than fifty starters. He led Alfred Grenda of Australia to the tape by five lengths. Reggie McNamara was third.

Arthur Spencer of Toronto surprised the fans by defeating Joe Fogler, the Brooklyn veteran. Spencer took two out of three heats, winning the last two after Fogler had won the first one.

NOTED RACER DEAD IN OLD KENTUCKY

Lexington, Ky., May 15.—Ornament, by Ordon—Victorine, the noted race horse and thoroughbred sire, is dead at the farm of H. P. Headley. He was twenty-two years old. Among Ornament's conquests were the Brooklyn Handicap, four Derbies, the Brighton Handicap, the Clark Stakes, the Twin City Handicap, Flatbush Stakes and Himyar Stakes.

MATTIE IS NO HAS-BEEN.

Chicago, May 15.—"Mathewson showed me more than at any time in the past two years in the last game in Pittsburgh and I am confident that just as soon as the hot weather is with us in earnest he will be able to pitch at least one game a week." So stated Manager McGraw of the Giants today when asked concerning the 1916 form of Big Six.

FOOD FOR SPORT FANS

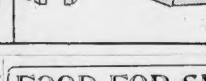
THE VALUE OF PREPAREDNESS.
(A short essay.)

Two men out; two out; Speaker up; base on balls.

PREPAREDNESS.

"I am prepared," the statesman said,
"For any sort of fight,
And I am ready for attack at morn or noon or night.
My district is impregnable—believe me, I'm in right.

"I got a juicy federal job for Ebenezer Jones,
And made the nation come across with fifty thousand bones
To make improvements on the creek that Jasper Hoosit owns.



"I got a postal building, costing fifty thousand, clears,
To satisfy constituents who live in Belvidere,
Although they seldom send a dozen postal cards per year.

"I've sent a ton of garden seed to voters every day,
Likewise instructions on the art of mowing clover hay,
For all of which the government has had to dig and pay.

"So what care I for soldiers! They are just a lot of bums
Who dress in fancy costume and march to fifes and drums.
I am prepared to win again when next election comes."

Occasionally we hear of a ball player of the name of O'Neill who is not called Tip, but we defy any man, woman or child within the hearing of our voice to discover a ball player named Gray who is not called Dolly or one named Weaver who is not called Buck.

PEACE AT ANY PRICE.

I hope for peace,
Though foreign nations rise and kill
And blood runs red in every rill
And millions slay their brothers—still,
I hope for peace.

I hope for peace,
I speak not now of gory loans,
Not of the North Sea's bloody foams.
'Tis six o'clock and I ain't home—
I hope for peace.

Frank Baker was gazing at his picture in the Daily Gaus. "It is a good picture of me," he said, "aside from the fact that it doesn't look like me and I don't bat right-ha Jed."

The American Derby, we are told, will be revived on July 1. It will be revived long enough to make it turn over in its grave and groan.

"There is absolutely no gratitude in baseball," Jess Tannehill, in spite of his years of faithful service, has been appointed umpire in the Ohio State League.

It is not surprising that Jack Curley wields considerable influence in Buenos Aires. They like toreadors down there.

Ed Walgast has discovered another opponent out in Salt Lake City and half a dozen more whom he will meet in the course of the next few months. Christ Columbus never had anything on Ad.

Antoine Tess, the alleged wrestling champion of Serbia, got his in a hurry, demonstrating at least that he is a Serbian.

International diplomacy seems to be based on the theory that you can't have peace unless you can fight for it.

BOXING BRIEFS AND GOSSIP

Not only has the Armory A. A. a mighty good bout booked for tomorrow night, but it will come right back with another satisfactory number. Which pleases the boxing lovers, for the winding at the Hippodrome, as well as the start at the Arena, was given over mostly to comic bouts.

Tomorrow night it is to be Johnny Dundee of Scotty Monteith's stable, one of the speediest glovemen in the featherweight game, vs. cunning old Matt Wells of Davey Morgan's string. It marks a coming back, as well as a comeback, with only one chance to prove a kick on, to Wells. Weller vanished from the scene from Charley White, to excel in such diminutive arenas as to make a disgusting figure for the fans to gape upon.

Said bum say, which Wells showed the populace when on with Eddie Murphy a few weeks ago, has been improved considerably since his treatment, report from New York states. Fine. And may the report prove no jolly.

For the May 23 show the Armory A. A. has matched Jimmy Griffins, the salted Akron, O., lightweight, a star according to all reports, and one who has not yet performed in Boston. His vis-a-vis is to be Willie Beecher, the husky New Yorker, who boxed rings around Johnny Harvey in their recent rumpus at the Arena.

Beecher showed considerable when on with Harvey. He came in very high in fact. Still, stopped speedily most of the way. Willie demonstrated that when he's in trim, as he promised to be in his next Boston go, he must be mighty good. He has already had a red-hot setto with Griffins, and "Mose" Greenbaum has him in anything like tip-top form. Willie bids fair making it extremely interesting for Griffins, who is reported to have shedded him in their recent battle in Cleveland.

Tomorrow night's Dundee-Wells bout is attracting considerable interest among the talent and bids fair attracting the first big regular house the Arena has had all season. The weight figure is announced as 130 pounds at 8 o'clock. That's a snap for Dundee, who is seldom as high as 128 or 129, while Matt can make it readily enough. That's the notch the two boys fought at in New Haven, Ct., last Fall, and their battle was jammed full of action, with Dundee winning by a nod on the post, as they say on the race track.

Friday night's windup event at the Commercial A. C. brings together Walter Butler of Revere and George Alger of Cambridge. Before Charley Deakler landed Butler into the sport's spotlight, the two boys had a number of bout bouts in the semi-final numbers at the Arena. There never was a whole lot to choose from between the two battlers, though right now Butler is rated a shade or two ahead of Alger and is almost bound to be installed the betting choice.

Alger makes his bow at the show fighting under Jack McLean's management. That should help the Cambridge veteran, and if he comes through, as much as gains a draw, he can be assured of getting plenty of work and the right dates.

Billie Burch of the Chicago Herald's sport staff, one of the Middle West's best-known boxing critics, is in Boston with the White Sox. When in New York last week, before coming on to Boston, Burch sat Nate Lewis, Charley White's manager, who has come East to be operated on.

"Lewis looks pretty well and will be up and around before long," states Burch. "Yes, it looks as if White and Freddie Welsh will have it out at Buenos Ayres. Lewis tells me he is getting $7,500 for his end, with round-trip transportation for three. As for Leonard, Welsh doesn't seem a bit anxious to get into the ring with Billy Gibson's charge, though they may go it again in New York in a ten-round no-decision affair Decoration Day or July 4, provided the Welsh-White match in Buenos Ayres falls through."

It is pretty well understood that if Welsh and White look up in Buenos Ayres it will mark the champion's last appearance, win or lose. Besides, his manager, Harry Pollock, evidently prefers losing the title to Nate Lewis than to Billy Gibson in the event he must part with it, and Freddie's recent goes with Leonard and Ever Hammer, not to mention Richie Mitchell, the Milwaukee broiler, would indicate that whatever good boy gets him in a decision fight will almost surely defend Uncle Sam.

Al Morton has closed with the New Orleans promoters for the "Mickey" Brown-Eddie Coulon match May 26. They are to step fifteen rounds. Morton gets a pretty good bid, which will be boosted $ per round, for two additional scraps if Brown makes good.

Willard Signed for Ten With Fred Fulton

Chicago, May 15.—Jess Willard, heavyweight champion of the world, has agreed to defend his title against Fred Fulton of Rochester, Minn.

Articles calling for a battle of ten rounds or more were signed by Tom Jones, representing Willard, and Mike Collins of Hudson, Wis., Fulton's manager. Bids were thrown open and will not close until July 1. The battle is to take place Labor Day before the club offering the best inducements.

According to the articles Willard is to get a flat guarantee of $17,500 with a percentage privilege and Fulton will take one-third of the gate receipts, provided they are large enough to pay Willard's guarantee and leave more than $5,000 additional for the promoter.

All Ready for First Card at Beach Oval

With the opening of the regular bike season only a few days distant the Revere Cycle Track will present scenes of unusual activity this week.

The first of the semi-weekly meets is scheduled to take place next Saturday night. Manager Nat Butler has already completed the card, which will bring together many of the new stars of bikedom, as well as quite a few of the old favorites.

The feature event will be a twenty-five mile motor paced race. Victor Linart, world's middle-distance champion, will oppose George Wiley, the Syracuse whirlwind, and Bobby Walthour of Atlanta, Ga. In addition there will be a well arranged set of amateur and professional events.

Row with Boy, Roth Asked to Leave Hotel

"Bobby" Roth, the Cleveland outfielder, who serves as one of Tris Speaker's suburban partners on such afternoons as the team's foe works a southpaw hurler, did not spend the last day or two at the swell hotel with his teammates during the Indians' recent stay in Boston.

It appears that Roth had an altercation with a "bellhop" over some tailoring he had sent out, being charged a price he stated in advance he wouldn't pay, say certain members of the Red Sox, whom "Bobby" told his troubles to, and was politely, but firmly, told by the hotel management to pay his bill and depart.

Roth spent the last two days of his stay in Boston at Putnam's Hotel, where most of the members of Bill Carrigan's crew always stop.

The Person Who Is Envious of Another's Success Is Usually One Who Has Not the Ability in Himself to Succeed

The American's Magazine and Fiction Page

For All Hours of a Summer Day

Reproduced by Special Arrangement with HARPER'S BAZAR, a Magazine for the Woman Who Knows, Published Without Interruption for Over Fifty Years

From the May Number of Harper's Bazar.

STRIPED linen is effectively handled in this tub dress for mornings. Soulié again shows a preference for the plain bodice. Swiss embroidery and black ribbon velvet are the only trimming.

FLOWERED marquisette, showing pink roses on a white ground, may indeed be sophisticated when made into a costume for the Summer reception. Heavily braided cord and tassels of pink silk.

SOULIE'S attention to detail is fittingly displayed in an elaborate costume of embroidered chiffon crepe and gros de Londres, all in white. The high collar is distinctive.

BULLOZ is a lover of the paintings of Watteau and Fragonard, else he could never attain the airiness and grace of his creations, says Emilie de Meraire in her letter from Paris in the May number of Harper's Bazar. Some of his evening and afternoon gowns have unlined skirts of voile or chiffon, but a short underskirt of silver or lace falls a little below the knees.

One evening gown of white tulle, called Mon Reve, is trimmed with circular strips of heliotrope ribbon embroidered in silver thread, giving the impression of brocaded silk.

The skirt is caught up and draped to give a shortened effect on one hip, and a garland of pink roses is drawn across the bodice and into the tulle drapery at the hip.

Another pretty evening gown of pink and blue tulle is entirely without sleeves. Silver ribbon shoulder-straps and a touch of silver at the waistline blend delightfully with the pink roses which trim the bodice. The lower part of the skirt, from about the knees down, is of blue tulle, which lays very full over a petticoat festooned with pink roses.

For evening wear Bulloz has created superb dresses by embroidering raised flowers in varied tints on faille, the leaves often being covered by a thickness of tulle touched with threads of dull gold. One of these creations, made for Mary Garden, is an emerald green embroidered with pink roses, draped on the hips, and has a simple waist relieved by dull gold lace. Another "Garden" gown is of black net, embroidered with motifs of silver and rhinestones.

For street wear Bulloz shows a choice of voiles and taffetas combined with chiffon and faille, many of the voiles being trimmed with taffeta in Roman stripes. Many of his street suits have the most fascinating little mantles and capes crossing in front, leaving the back straight and loose, thus assuring a youthful line.

The tailored costumes have full skirts, most of them being of the length to which we have become accustomed. As a general rule the sleeves of his tailored suits are long and the collars are of lingerie.

Bulloz has the reputation of creating the most spectacular dresses in Paris, and among the great houses now open, he is the only one using in his color combinations the modern palette of pure color as seen in the decorations of Bakst.

The two most marked details of the Paquin collection are straw trimming and the collars, which, by their special cut seem to lengthen and broaden the bust-line. The collars rather resemble fichus, being high at the back and quite low in the front, leaving the throat free. Skirts shown by this house are not very short, and some are trimmed with bias strips of straw which help to give the necessary flare. Several of the models have mousseline pantalets of the lightest colors, only visible when the skirt is lifted.

Tailored suits at Paquin's are fairly tight fitting, the coats in some instances resembling basques. These coats are full about the hips and generally a little longer than the hip-line. Sleeves are long and tight, but leg-o'-mutton as shown. In the Paquin group there are several good-looking, very loose coats, especially made to be worn over fragile gowns and also silk dresses with tight fitting bodices giving a slender effect. The skirts, charming combinations of tulle and lace, have most interesting lines. One of the loveliest models is a multi-tinted tulle and lace blending harmoniously with gold lace satin and giving the illusion of a faded pastel of the past.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"JUDGE NOT"

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A short time ago I was introduced to a young man whom I like very much. My friends have warned me from their own experience that he is of questionable character.

As he has always been nice when with me, I would like you to advise me what to do.

I. R. X.

YOU ought to have your father or some masculine members of your family investigate the stories you have heard about this young man—unless they come from people in whom you have no faith at all. Every one ought to be given a chance in the world, but unfortunately a girl cannot take the risk it means to her reputation and character to be constantly associated with a man of weak moral fibre. Give him the benefit of the doubt, and if he respects your dignity and your father finds either that the charges against him are false or even that he is attempting to reform, try to help him.

ASK HIM TO CALL

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am eighteen. Three years ago I was a stenographer in a small office. The owner's assistant invited me to remarkable places several times, but I always refused. Two years ago the owner was called to south America, and returned only about six months ago. During his absence this young man took charge and treated me with the greatest respect. Now, Miss Fairfax, the manner in which he speaks to me convinces me that he loves me. I now admire this young man.

A. M. F.

BY all means invite the young man to call at your home. His conduct was chivalrous and of the sort to win your interest and since you have learned no further acquaintance to care for him, why not be honest enough to show it and make up for your previous actions? If he discusses your refusal of some years ago to go about with him socially, tell him frankly that you hardly knew him then and that you were young and disinclined to make acquaintances easily or lightly, but that his courteous treatment of you during the past year has made you wish to renew the acquaintance which once you may have undervalued. As a matter of fact, I do not think the situation will arise. If you ask him to come to see you, he will probably accept and consider the previous incident a closed book.

A BREAKFAST COSTUME

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Will you let me know if it is proper to wear a long silk dressing sack and boudoir cap to breakfast while visiting friends?

K. M. A.

DO not come to breakfast in a costume which is suitable for the privacy of your own room and nothing else. A shirtwaist and skirt or a trim little belted-in house-dress is the only suitable and dignified costume to wear to table.

The Struggles of a Wife

Horace Proposes a Better Apartment, in Keeping With Their Improved Finances

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XXXIII

Copyright, 1910, Star Company

AFTER Grace had told her mother of Mrs. Perkins' proposal of marriage, she made no more references to her private affairs. Myra noticed that Max Courtenay's visits ceased abruptly, and drew her own conclusions, but she asked no question.

Grace was always dutiful and respectful, yet the mother's heart yearned for some outburst of affection from her. There was a slight barrier between the two women, and the older one hesitated to cross it—just as she hesitated to talk to her husband of her longing for a word of encouragement from him.

Surely the father and daughter must know how hard the wife and mother was working for them both. Neither of them referred to the fact. Their only recognition of it was shown in their evident pleasure in entertaining their friends and in the gradually improved conditions in the home.

Myra's one object nowadays was to make the best of her increased income by providing for her dear ones what they most wanted, and by hiding from their associates the knowledge of the fight she was having to do this. She knew that her husband was straining every nerve to pay off the debts he owed. Therefore she insisted that she needed no financial help from him. Once in a great while he suggested awkwardly that she might think it strange that he did not "hand out more money for running expenses."

"Every cent I can spare must go towards paying my business debts and towards getting square with the world," he explained one day.

She looked at him eagerly. At last he was going to take her into his confidence and tell her just how matters stood.

"Of course, dear," she agreed. "But you are getting along well, aren't you?—at least"—correcting herself—"you are doing as well as you hoped—aren't you?"

HORACE IS SUGGESTIVE.

"Yes, yes," he answered, his manner assuming a brusqueness that made her feel that she was too inquisitive. "But I did not hope much, you know."

"I did," she averred, "and I am still certain that you will win out."

He did not reply, and she did not know whether the tight folding of his lips meant that he was trying to suppress some expression of feeling, or that he was only disturbed at her persistency in speaking of a matter about which he preferred to maintain silence. If he only would tell her about his affairs, and thus encourage her to tell him about hers.

As it was, she was conscious all the while of an under current of fear that perhaps Horace's business was not progressing satisfactorily—that perhaps she was extravagant in spending money for his and Grace's sake which she should be hoarding for food and clothing for them all should the man's business fail again. Yet husband and daughter had now acquired the habit of expecting her to supply them with the comforts—and even luxuries—of life, as well as the necessaries of their existence.

Summer came and many people left the city. Miss Ianson had taken a cottage at Deal Beach for the season, and invited Grace to spend a month there with her.

When the girl told Myra of the invitation gladly. She was writing a serial now for one of the Western magazines. Yet, busy as she was, she kept the evenings free for Horace. She must not let his loneliness during his daughter's absence, when he must depend upon her for company. She would persuade him to walk with her for an hour or two in the cool darkness of Riverside Drive, and this was the only outdoor exercise she ever obtained.

But husband and wife had been alone but ten days when a letter came from Horace's partner, who had a camp in Maine, urging him to come and make him a short visit.

"You must go," Myra said. "You have not had a week's vacation in eighteen months."

THE HUSBAND DEPARTS.

Horace hesitated. "But, my dear," he ventured, "don't you need a change of air and scene yourself?"

"Not at all," she said. She assumed a practical manner to conceal the emotion aroused by his sudden consideration of her comfort. "I feel better in my own home in hot weather."

So urgent was her insistence that he take the trip to Maine that finally "to please her," he went.

Left by herself, Myra did not have time for depression, but worked with systematic regularity. She ate plain, wholesome food, and kept regular hours, caring for her body as she would have cared for a machine with which she expected to perform a large amount of labor. She devoted herself to reading current literature, the latest magazines and the newest books, for she appreciated that she should keep in touch with what other writers were doing.

She spoke truly when she told her husband and daughter upon their return that she had not had any chances to be lonely.

"You certainly look better than when we went away," Horace declared. "It's not complimentary to us, is it Grace?"

"Not very," the girl replied with a smile.

The mother did not explain to them that during their absence she had lived so simply and cheaply that she had lost the haunting fear of running into debt, nor that she had laid aside a small sum with which to start a savings bank account.

It was not work, she now knew, that harassed her, but the worry and stress of keeping up with the rest of the world. While alone, she had not had to do this, so she had eaten better and slept more tranquilly than for many months past.

And then, in the late Summer, Horace told her that he would like to move into another apartment. "I can afford now to pay ten dollars a month more rent," he explained. "With a little of what you are making added to this we might take an elevator apartment. Between us, I guess we can afford to move, can't we? You know," he added, as if approaching a distasteful subject—"from a business standpoint it helps a man to appear prosperous."

"Yes, I know," Myra agreed. But Horace made no further reference to his business affairs.

(To Be Continued).

A Strange Custom

In a Canadian settlement, where there had been very dirty weather, a man called at his neighbor's house and remained some time rubbing his goloshes, or "gums" as they are called in those parts.

"Where is Mr. Brown?" asked the lady of the house (a new-comer) of the maid who announced the visitor.

"He's a cleanin' of his gums on the doormat, marm," was the reply. "Well, I always reflected these Canadians were very rough and ready, but I never thought one would go to the length of using the doormat as a toothbrush!" exclaimed the lady.

A Linguist

An officer home on leave told the following story:—

"Evans is a good linguist, but he does not know French, so he comes to me for the names of things. Lately he learned oeufs, and I had delicious fresh eggs. One day he brought me a boiled fowl, and I asked him, 'How did you get it?' Do you know the French word for chicken?'

"'I don't,' said Evans, 'but the old woman jabbered, "Voulez-vous des oeufs?" and I clinched one, pointed to it, and said, very loud, "Je voulez manger ces deux oeufs," and she understood me.'

Just What They Wanted

Irate Landlord (to couple who are taking a lovers' walk on his property): "Now, then, can't you read?"

Amorous Youth: "Oh, yes, we can read well enough."

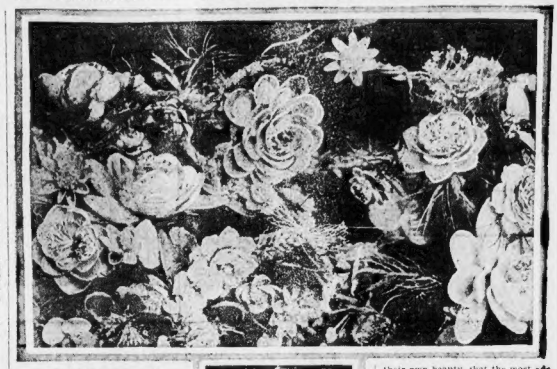
Irate Landlord: "Then go to the end of this road and read the sign there."

Amorous Youth: "We have read it. It says 'Private,' and that's just why we came down here."

Shells as Things of Beauty

Some of the Uses to Which They Have Been Put

The top picture shows part of a shell basket made by the Indians of Lower California. Below is a shell basket made by the Indians of Central America, formed of small white oval shells; flowers are made of thin and shallow white and rose-tinted shells, and both basket and flowers are constructed with fine wires cleverly concealed.



BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

BEAUTIFUL shells were among the first objects of adornment for his person and his dwelling that were used by man, and their forms and colors furnished some of his earliest lessons in aesthetic education.

Shells were also one of the first kinds of money. For the American Indians wampum beads made from shells took the place of gold. The ornamental uses of shells, as Mr. L. P. Gratacap shows in the American Museum Journal, are as curious as they are numerous. The most striking in appearance are the imitations of flowers, although this appeals to a very primitive taste. It is the ingenuity of the combinations and the surprising felt that two such essentially different natural objects can be made to resemble each other, that afford the pleasure given by the sight of a basket, or garland, of shell-flowers.

Petals, stamens, pistils, leaves, stems, are all imitated in shell forms, while in color-tints and blendings it is questionable whether some shells are not superior to flowers. In the property of iridescence the finer shells certainly possess an advantage over any vegetable substance. Pearls are a kind of shell, formed within shells, and they have always been regarded as the most queenly of gems.

The Central American Indians have long been famous for their skill in making shell flowers, and some exquisite specimens of their work are to be seen in the American Museum of Natural History in New York. Baskets and flowers are alike composed of white and delicately tinted shells, held in shape by fine wires. Flower baskets made of shells by the Indians of Lower California, although very striking in appearance, are ranked below the Central American products, because glue instead of invisible wiring is employed to hold the work together.

A truly magnificent object is a pair of bonbon dishes, belonging to Mrs. F. A. Constable, and loaned to the museum, which are formed of shallow shells supported by scarabees, the latter and the outside of the shells being coated with silver. The enormous splendor of the inner side of the abalone shells forming the interior of the dishes is remarkably attractive.

But it is when the shells are employed not to imitate something else in nature but for the sake of their own beauty, that the most admirable ornamental effects are obtained with them. This principle does not forbid their use in the form of headdresses, belts, pendants, etc.

Thus at the same museum there may be seen a life-size figure of a Tahitian "fire-walker," with his head encircled with a garland of shells which have not been disguised in the form of imitation flowers. Primitive man in this respect has really shown better taste than the civilized man, for among savage tribes shells were not used imitatively, although they were often employed as symbols.

The Fijian chiefs wear the orange cowry as a badge of office, and shells, used simply as shells because they were in themselves beautiful, have been found among the personal adornments of early man in all parts of the world.

Another use of shells more truly aesthetic than the employment to make imitation flowers is the adoption of their forms and their combinations of color as suggestions in the arts. Mr. Ruskin thought that he could trace some suggestions, derived from the cockle shell, in some of the ornamental features of European architecture. A fine abalone shell might afford to any artist fresh ideas in the combination of color tints.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION DEFENDED

The wave of protest against the scheme to abolish the present Public Service Commission was swelled today by the opposition of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange.

The position of this important business organization is stated by President George F. Washburn in a letter sent by him to Speaker Cox of the House of Representatives which was made public today.

President Washburn states that the directors of the Real Estate Exchange, after a careful study of the situation, unanimously voted that in their opinion the powers, responsibilities and activities of the Public Service Commission should be greatly enlarged, that the Commission should not be made a football of politics and that the membership of the Commission should not be decreased.

SHOULD BE FIVE MEMBERS.

The views of the directors are summarized in President Washburn's letter as follows:

"It follows, therefore, in the opinion of the directors, that the membership of the Public Service Commission should not be fewer than five in number, more if necessary to cover the additional duties suggested, and that the salaries should not be less than the members of the Commission now receive."

The Boston Chamber of Commerce, the United Improvement Association, and the four brotherhoods of railroad employes are among the big organizations that previously expressed their opposition to the scheme. President Washburn states the opposition of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange in the following letter to Speaker Cox:

May 13, 1916.

Hon. Channing H. Cox,
Speaker of the House,
State House,
Boston, Massachusetts.

Dear Sir:—

I am requested to communicate to you action by the Board of Directors of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange, at a meeting held May 9th, 1916.

GIVE THEM MORE POWER.

It was found to be the unanimous judgment of the directors that House Bill No. 2040 should be so amended as to give to the Massachusetts Public Service Commission larger powers, greater responsibilities and a broader field of activity.

The directors are of the opinion that the Public Service Commission might well be so reconstituted as to embrace all of the public utilities now under the supervision of the Public Service Commission, and could with advantage include the gas and electric lighting and power companies, the water power corporations, and other commissions supervising and regulating kindred activities, with all matters relating to the use of the highways, and possibly the State highways themselves.

Whether this is done or not, it is of the first importance, in the judgment of the directors, that a commission, the efficiency of which is so vital to the dignity of the Commonwealth, should be a board, impressive because of its dignity, competent by virtue of an ever-widening experience, and efficient as a result of its continuity of policy and uniformity of decisions based upon proper and consistent interpretation of the law.

The membership of the commission should be of a sufficient number to permit each member to specialize in the particular department under his supervision, after the fashion of the Interstate Commerce Commission, where the rule is that the facts in a case are marshalled and presented by the expert member in charge for searching review in executive session and final adjudication by the full commission. Thus there would be assured that uniformity of decisions which postulates efficiency and adequacy, and avoids conflicting decisions.

MAKE SALARY INVITING.

The directors urge that the salary figures be high enough and the tenure of office long enough, undisturbed by party vicissitudes, to justify men of exceptional qualifications in accepting membership, for it is of the highest importance that the Massachusetts Public Service Commission should be so fully competent in every respect as to enable its members to cope with men of distinguished ability who represent the corporations, and to command the confidence of the Commonwealth.

It follows, therefore, in the opinion of the directors, that the membership of the Public Service Commission should not be fewer than five in number, more if necessary to cover the additional duties suggested, and that the salaries should not be less than the members of the Commission now receive and should even be commensurate with these larger responsibilities and the talent required to meet them, all of which is possible without increased costs because of the savings and economies resulting from the coordination of departments and avoidance of duplication of service.

This grouping of interests of a kindred nature and the clothing of a commission with the larger responsibilities set forth above, would, in the judgment of the directors, bring to the Commonwealth the high standards that characterize our courts, and the directors urge the careful consideration of the suggestions herein outlined.

Manifestly, these suggestions do not carry any criticism of existing commissions or involve the future usefulness of the most competent members now in the service of the Commonwealth.

Respectfully,

For the Board of Directors, Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange, by GEORGE F. WASHBURN, President.

PROF. SPOFFORD SPEAKS FOR NEW $10,000,000 BELT LINE

Professor Charles M. Spofford, head of the Department of Civil Engineering at Tech and a member of the Boston Terminal Commission, today advocated the construction of a $10,000,000 belt line, to be leased and controlled by the State, as a relief for freight congestion in the Metropolitan district.

"Defective freight terminal conditions in the Metropolitan district are responsible for an enormous loss of money, time and comfort to the people doing business not only in that district but in the entire State as well," Professor Spofford declared before a public hearing on the project by the Legislative Committee on Metropolitan Affairs.

"The great amount of teaming in the district because of inadequate freight facilities causes much of the congestion and destruction of the streets and makes necessary the building of elevated railroads and subways," he said. "As this future increase, with the normal growth of the district, will necessitate either the widening of existing streets or the construction of new streets and the building of additional subways."

Professor Spofford declared that 2,000,000 tons of freight are teamed every year through Boston's streets because of inadequate terminal facilities and the cost amounts to about $800,000.

He said that the relief provided by the State-owned belt line would develop new industries, keep traffic out of the congested districts, make for quicker transportation and would remove whatever discriminatory freight rates now exist.

Assistant Corporation Counsel James R. Devlin, Jr., recorded the city of Boston in favor of the project. The Fruit & Produce Exchange also indorsed the idea.

DEATH OF INVENTOR W. E. EASTMAN, AT 75

William E. Eastman, inventor of the Eastman eat heater, and a widower known business man, died today at his home, No. 21 Ridgefield road, Winchester, aged seventy-five years. He was stricken with heart disease while preparing breakfast.

Mr. Eastman was born in Derby Line, Vt. After inventing the heater, he organized a company to manufacture it, known as the Electric Car Heater Company, with which he was connected up to the time of his death. He also invented an automobile spring.

He is survived by a widow and one daughter. The funeral will take place Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. from his home.

OFFER $3 A DAY FOR "GREEN" LABORERS

P. J. McGovern, the general contractor, who is building the underwater section of the Dorchester tunnel, today asked Inspector William J. Burke, chief of the United States Employment Service in Boston, for 200 "green hands" at $3 a day. McGovern wants the men right away. This is said to be the highest wage ever offered to so large a number of inexperienced laborers. Along the water front 1,000 longshoremen are needed immediately.

SOMERVILLE LADY SAYS NOW CURED

Mrs. Emma Westcott of 16 Richardson St. Had Indigestion and Dyspepsia

Ask anyone who has used Plant Juice, the new herbal stomach remedy and they will tell you how tired out and weary they were before using it, how they could not eat for fear of pain and any degree of comfort. They will tell you how they were all run down and debilitated, how they will tell you of the change that took place after taking this great herbal preparation, how their strength returned as if by magic, the weight of years seemed to fall off their backs and life once more became rosy-hued and bright. Plant Juice not only compliches wonders in restoring health to sufferers of stomach, liver and kidney troubles, and that distressing ailment, rheumatism in its worst forms, needs only to read the signed testimonials of grateful users of this remedy who have been restored to health.

Take for instance the testimonial of Mrs. Emma Westcott, who lives at No. 16 Richardson street, Somerville, and is a well known lady of that city, having also many friends in this city, which she states:

"For 16 years I have suffered with indigestion and dyspepsia. Sour stomach fermented in my stomach and caused gas and distress. I had no appetite and was so dizzy at times that I thought I would fall over. I thought I would come up before my eyes and I could hardly get my breath. I was so nervous, had no appetite what-ever and had not enough strength for six years and could not touch meat or vegetables for fear of distress after eating it, but nothing helped me until I began to take Plant Juice. Now I can eat what I have put my system in fine condition and I feel strong and well as any one in the land, who is an employee of the Boston Elevated R.R. Co. I am glad to make this statement! I can highly recommend your Plant Juice. I was troubled with my stomach and kidneys for years and could hardly keep anything in my stomach, as it would give me such pain, I felt as though I had a ball in the pit of my stomach. Since I have taken Plant Juice my stomach is in fine condition and I can eat anything and digest it, sleep well and have no more trouble of any kind. I can say for Plant Juice that it is the greatest medicine ever placed on the market, and I am glad to recommend it to others."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Drug Department of the Houghton & Dutton Store, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

Private Americans Raise Food Blockade

THE British government has finally consented to permit food supplies from America, intended for starving Poland, to cross the ocean unmolested by British warships.

To the everlasting shame and disgrace of our government this tardy recognition of the claims of humanity and the rights of neutrals is not due to any representations, protests or movements of our pro-British State Department.

The rescue of Poland's starving millions is due solely to the humane interference of a private American banker and the co-operation of the Rockefeller Foundation.

So far as Mr. Wilson or Mr. Lansing has been concerned, the wretched victims of Russian cruelty and British blockade in Poland could have continued to starve and to die.

It seems to us that this successful effort of two private citizens to raise the food blockade which was inflicting such horrors upon the poor, helpless non-combatants in Poland is a painful and shameful commentary upon the idle complaisance with which our State Department stood by and watched all this suffering and all these deaths.

Trick of Abolishing State Boards No Novelty

THIS cheap corporation trick of abolishing State boards, as illustrated by the present attempt to abolish the Public Service Commission, whenever their vigilance in protecting the public threatens to interfere with the lawless schemes and unjust aggressions of selfish private interests, has not even the merit of novelty. It has been worked over and over again in Massachusetts.

Away back in the early fifties, for instance, before public service corporations had become a factor in politics, the closely allied mill owners dominated the Legislature for a time as completely as the New Haven ruled it eight or ten years ago. The Court of Common Pleas, of which the late Judge Hoar and ex-Governor George N. Briggs were members and Edward Mellen the chief justice, gave offence to the mill owners by securing just compensation for the farmers who were injured by the flowage of their lands to develop water power. Accordingly, the Legislature in 1855, passed a law to abolish the terms of the Court of Common Pleas and to create the "Superior Court of Suffolk County," which was to "have in all respects the same powers which the Court of Common Pleas now has"—and which, needless to say, gave the farmers no further redress and the mill owners no further cause for uneasiness.

Again, in the seventies, the State Board of Health began to interfere with the illegal and dangerous pollution of our streams by mill refuse, and could not be persuaded to let the subject alone. The mill owners thereupon elected their chief, Thomas Talbot of Billerica, as Governor, and caused the Legislature, under the pretence of economy, to abolish the Board of Health and transfer its powers to a joint board of health, lunacy and charity, which gave the mills no further trouble, but proved so unsatisfactory from every public standpoint that the process had to be undone a few years later.

How You May Know That You Are Growing Old

Copyright, 1916, by the Star Company

HUNDREDS of millions of Asiatics yearn for Nirvana—which is peace.

The only peace that human beings can know is the peace of old age.

Old age means contemplation instead of struggle.

It means resignation instead of fierce rebellion.

It means toleration instead of bitter criticism.

It means especially consolation, for old age knows that nothing matters much.

How may a man know that he has entered Nirvana through the door that leads to old age?

How can you tell that you are growing old?

Here are a few signs:

You look backward and tell what used to happen, instead of looking ahead and predicting proudly what will happen.

When you contemplate passing through a swinging door, you let the younger man push it and you walk while he pushes.

You feel for the first time that the second street car will do quite as well as the first—and you do not rush.

You are on time, waiting for the train to start—you did not use to be.

You notice that the years RUSH by. They used to creep. Spring used to last a century, now it lasts a few days only.

You see the steps one at a time as you go down stairs, and the steps must be attended to separately—it was not so when you went down three steps at a time, or moved your feet as quickly as the fingers of a typewriter.

What other signs of old age have YOU noticed?

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

Satisfied

The Pacifists are charmed. We have a very small army, and unless something is done to relieve it in Mexico it will soon be very much smaller.

Not Much Chance for a Bet

The St. Louis convention promises to be about as exciting as the quadrennial meeting of the electoral college.

"Somewhere in Mexico"

Of course, as soon as it is announced that Villa is located we know exactly where he is.

Anything to Hold Him

First the G. O. P. leaders contend that the Colonel is clear out of the running, and then they want him arrested for exceeding the speed limit.

High Time

Now possibly we can call Mexico's attention to the necessity of observing the laws of humanity.

It's Worth Knowing, Too

We observe that Colonel Roosevelt is still aware of the fact that there is usually plenty of room in Monday morning's newspapers.

City Ways

By William F. Kirk

"SHIFTLESS STEVE," we called him then,
Though it wasn't to his liking;
Wouldn't work like other men—
Watched his brothers do the hiking.
Somehow he was never broke
While his father ran the shop.
'Twas a kind of standing joke—
"Can you spare a dollar, Pop?"

When he went away from home
Every neighbor shook his head,
All were glad to see him roam,
But he'd come back home, they said.
Well, he came back yesterday,
Dressed as swell as any fop;
What d'ye s'pose we heard him say?
"Lend me twenty dollars, Pop!"

Food Must Be More Than Fuel

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

The World's Foremost Writer on Medical Subjects

THE trouble is that many diet-reformers take a short-sighted, or rather, one-sided view of the question: "What is a good food?" A good food, a good ration, must be a good fuel, because about three pounds have to be burnt in the body every day in order to give "steam" for the daily work. But that is only one side of its utility, although a most important one.

Most reform and money-saving diets look at the problem only from a coal, or gasoline, point of view, while a good food should be at least three other things besides good "gas"—a good repairer, a good lubricant, and a rust preventer or disease protector. Our food has to build up our body in the beginning, make repairs and extensions to it later, lubricate, cool and balance it, and last, but not least, keep up a supply of reserve ammunition, constantly on hand, to fight disease with.

There is only one known food which will do all four of these things, and upon which alone the body can be kept in health for years, if necessary, and that is meat. Further than that, it is the only food which can fill two of these bills at all—repairing and fighting disease. This is the reason why we are so fond of it and it is so expensive; that is to say, we are willing to pay such a high price for it. Regrettable as it is from the point of view of economy, it must be frankly confessed that all attempts to substitute some other repair and disease-fighting foodstuffs for meat in our diet have proved practically a failure.

The technical name for meat is protein, and the reason why it is so valuable and indispensable for growth and repair purposes is that our bodies themselves are made of "meat," or protein. We may call ourselves "dough-faces" or "pudding-heads" or "milksops," but no amount of ingenuity can build any part of our bodies out of starch. And if it could, we should be in danger of melting away when it rained. Only meat or protein, which includes fish, game, eggs, and milk, can be used for our building stuff, or to make repairs.

Many attempts have been made to substitute what are known as vegetable proteins, such as the gluten or sticky part of wheat bread, beans, peas and nuts, for meat, but none of them have been found really satisfactory. The gluten of wheat bread is of great value in the body, but it cannot readily be used for repairing purposes, nor does it give the reserve ammunition to fight disease.

New School of Poetry

Ella Wheeler Wilcox Says

Offends by Intolerance

Advocates of Free Verse Have Given New Impetus to Literature and Deserve Credit, but Their Condemnation of Others Is Unjust and Unwise

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1916, by the Star Company.

THERE is a New School of Poetry in the land.

The new school consists of Imagists, Realists, Impressionists, and followers of free verse.

Free verse carries its own explanation in its title.

It is free from rules and obligations; it rhymes when, where and how it pleases, or not at all. Its verses consist of one word or twenty in a line, and the poet's mood or will or whim is his law.

Many interesting, more amusing, and occasional beautiful results are obtained by these New School poets. The movement has given a fresh impetus to literature, and will bring forth good results. It began with Walt Whitman, and so far no other real genius has developed in these lines, but real talent has cropped out and larger harvests will follow.

The glaring fault of the New School is its impertinence and intolerance toward the established poets; its insufferable self-conceit, and its unwillingness to leave well-earned laurels upon distinguished brows.

Not only are the living poets of the other school attacked by the new cult, but the revered dead are dragged from their graves and set as scarecrows in the field of new poetry. Pope, Tennyson, Wordsworth, Longfellow, Bryant and a host of others are declared to be at the best but "near poets," no longer to be regarded as immortals, and scarcely to be spoken of with respect.

As for the living poets who obey classic laws and who follow the old rules of rhythm and metre, they are regarded as fly-specks on the face of poetry and are to be wiped off with a damp sponge, dipped in acid, lest they breed disease.

This attitude on the part of some of the leaders of the New School of Poetry is to be deplored. It is like that of the Bone Setter, who, not content with his own admirable achievements, attempts to drive the skilled surgeon and the wise physician from their strongholds in the scientific world.

The field for poetry is as large as the Universe. There is always room for a new poet, just as there is room in the air above us for a new bird note, and each poet who has the real gift to express a real message will find his audience as the new bird will find his listeners.

It would be far more becoming and gracious were the new poets to enter the lovely domain of Poesy with that graciousness and humility which are ever attributes of genius, and to sing their songs persistently in their own way, allowing the dead to repose in peace and the living to pursue their own methods unmolested.

Instead, it seems to be after this fashion in which the new school speaks:

We are lit
Nothing ever was, nothing is, nothing ever will be,
That can compare with us.
Imaginists, Impressionists, Futurists, and all that sort of thing,
We sit
Right on the pinnacle of Mount Parnassus, and sing.
All the other kind of poets are hanging on the crags down under us, knowing they must soon drop into oblivion.
We have dug the old dead poets out of their graves and left their skeletons bleaching on the ground,
Until we came Poetry was stumbling along in
A rut.
Her rules and regulations, her rhymes and metres and musical cadences tangled like draperies about her feet.
We took her from the rut; we stripped her nude.
And showed her perfect form!
Heavens! But that made a storm!
The critics thought us rude,
But we were only kind.
Then we began to educate her mind.
We told her Shakespeare was a
NUT
And Milton, Homer, Dante, Tennyson, Wordsworth, were all dead;
Common rhymsters who had no real worth.
As for the Muses, they were a silly crowd,
Allowed.
No least recognition for US, they must get off the earth, for we own it.
Nobody cares for us, but that is our pride.
We would be ashamed of popularity and pay.
The rarity
Of our readers proves our excellence,
At least, to Us.
And we make such a continual fuss
About ourselves that, anyway,
We couldn't hear what other people had to say.
In fact, we don't consider there are any other people.
There is no art, or music, or poetry, or beauty in the world, save what we make.
On the pinnacle of self-satisfaction we sit.
We are IT.

Neutrality

IN a book entitled "Neutrality," published in Chicago, S. Ivor Stephen arraigns a portion of the American press for lack of neutrality in reporting the European war. Commenting on the strict neutrality observed by the Hearst newspapers, he writes:

"Newspaper readers all through the country know that to have the first news, the best news, at all cost, and irrespective of where the news comes from, made the Hearst papers, wherever they are published, the newsiest, and, for that reason, the widest-circulated papers.

"The Hearst papers, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, are American, and Hearst at least lives up to his slogan: 'An American paper for American people.'

"He has fought, and is fighting, in favor of an American merchant marine; he fought in favor of free tolls for coastwise shipping through the Panama Canal; openly and fearlessly advocated the fortification of the canal and, with all his power and eloquence, reason, justice and patriotism, fought, and continues to fight, the subjugation of our national pride, spirit and achievement to arrogant Great Britain.

"Though printing the news as it came from London and Paris and Petrograd, the Hearst papers very frequently warned its readers to beware of false news, of exaggerations whenever they had reason to doubt the correctness of the London-inspired lying news service.

"In this greatest crisis in the world's history, perhaps the greatest in our own history, William R. Hearst's newspapers are sane in the midst of insanity. While his brother editors are appealing to the 'mob' and attempting to inflame and embitter the mob mind, he dares face the storm and counsel moderation.

"At a time when the richest and most powerful interests in the country are desperately concerned in prolonging the war there is not money enough at their disposal to influence his newspapers.

"Alone among the great editors of the country he is one with the imagination to grasp the full horrors of this war, the insight to prove its meaning, the vision to foresee its fearful consequences to the race.

"It is the stalwart Americanism of his newspapers, untainted either by Anglicism or Teutonism, that most distinguishes them from other newspapers published."
